

U.S. Ends 5 Days Of Bombing

... Damage By Laser-Guided Bombs, Other Weapons Is Assessed

Saigon (AP) — The United States ended its deepest, longest and heaviest U.S. air campaign against North Vietnam in more than three years after U.S. jets blasted targets for a fifth day Thursday.

The U.S. Command said three planes were lost and five crewmen missing. But it held up any announcement of damage to North Vietnamese air fields, radar and antiaircraft facilities and supply depots by laser-guided bomb and other advanced weaponry.

The Viet Cong radio claimed eight U.S. planes were shot down Thursday with two airmen captured and numerous others killed. It asserted this brought to 19 the total number of planes downed. The U.S. Command said one plane was shot down Sunday and two Thursday.

A previous North Vietnamese report said seven planes were shot down, making 14 in all. The discrepancy was not explained.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command announced that one American was killed in action last week, the lowest toll in nearly seven years.

The Viet Cong's unilateral New Year's cease-fire began at 1 a.m. Friday after a broadcast threat to retaliate for the U.S. air raids with "the strongest possible punitive blows" against "the American aggressors in South Vietnam."

More than 1,000 strikes and hundreds of support missions were flown during the bombing campaign against North Vietnam. The raids hit as far north as the 20th parallel, and about 80 miles south of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital.

The U.S. Command said most of the raids were in North Vietnam's southernmost province, Quang Binh, where a massive buildup of supplies and antiaircraft defenses had been reported.

It was the biggest attack on North Vietnam and the deepest penetration since the bombing halt Nov. 1, 1968.

Most of the attacks against fuel and supply depots were around the Mu Gia, Ban Karai and Ban Raving Passes, all entries to the Ho Chi Minh Trail leading through Laos to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

'Smart Bombs' Used

Most bombing was done by planes using radar and computers to guide them to targets. U.S. officials said a number of new or improved weapons systems were used. These included "smart bombs," guided by laser light beams and capable of steering themselves into underground supply depots or aircraft hangars.

These bombs can find their way "around corners and underneath things," one pilot said.

Veteran pilots said they had run into some of the heaviest fire from Soviet-made SAM2 missiles, the "flying telephone poles," since they began flying against the North.

Several times they sighted MIGs but none challenged them. Said Lt. Col. John O'Gorman of St. Louis, Mo.: "The MIGs steer clear of us when we are there in force."

5 Nonhostile Deaths

Reflecting the U.S. withdrawal, the U.S. Command reported 29 Americans were wounded in action last week, in addition to the one death. There were five deaths from nonhostile causes such as disease and accidents.

Demos Hope For Money

Washington (AP) — The debt-plagued Democratic National Committee is hoping sympathy donations will help ease a financial plight dramatized by new requirements that it provide guarantees or pay cash in advance for 1972 travel and telephone bills.

The Democrats are still $9.3 million in debt, the legacy of a losing campaign in 1968, and as a new round of presidential primary elections approaches, they still have not paid all the expenses of the last one.

Party Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the Democrats received nearly $2 million in contributions during 1971.

He said that "meant the difference between closing the Democratic National Committee offices and our continued operation."

Donations Received

O'Brien said the party has received hundreds of unsolicited, if relatively small contributions since it was told there would be no telephone service at its 1972 national convention unless a $1.5 million phone bill left over from 1968 is paid before July.

He said that "dramatized the seriousness of the party's financial position as we enter a presidential election year."

O'Brien said the party will begin early in January a major campaign to attract donations, "designed to capitalize on this increased public awareness of our financial crisis."

The Democratic debt includes the unpaid phone bills, another $1.5 million owed to airlines for campaign travel, and about $3 million in loans advanced to the party by individuals.

Another $2.9 million is owed to a variety of creditors for printing, hotel bills, and similar campaign expenditures. In addition, the party ran up a $400,000 debt for the expenses of running its national headquarters during 1969 and early 1970.

Humphrey And Kennedy

Almost $2 million of the campaign debt was incurred by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in their campaigns for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The party assumed those debts by national committee vote early in 1969. The bills submitted by the Kennedy and Humphrey organizations totaled nearly $1 million apiece.

The same offer to assume debts run up in seeking the nomination was made to then-Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who declined, and to Sen. George McGovern, who never submitted bills.

Credit was easy to come by in the last campaign, but times have changed. One party official said it may have been too easy to charge things, that too many people may have made too many trips on easily obtained party credit cards.

But now, O'Brien reported, most airlines are requiring cash, performance bonds, or co-signers for services to the Democratic National Committee and to the party presidential candidates.

Forget It, Galbraith Says

Economist John Kenneth Galbraith, former presidential adviser, says the Democrats should not pay off the debt to individual lenders.

"They are debts to the fat cats of the party, all of whom advanced the money in the 1968 campaign with something in mind," he said in New Orleans Tuesday.

Galbraith said the debts to the telephone company and the airlines are causing more of a problem. "It's time that question ... caught up with the fact that for years the party organizations have been using this arrangement as a device for getting semi-legal corporate contributions, running up a big debt and then having a compromise after the election."

Computer Refuses To Admit High School Student Exists

Alexandria, Va. (AP) — Robin Henry, 15, insists she is a Washington High School student.

But the school's computer steadfastly has refused to admit she is enrolled.

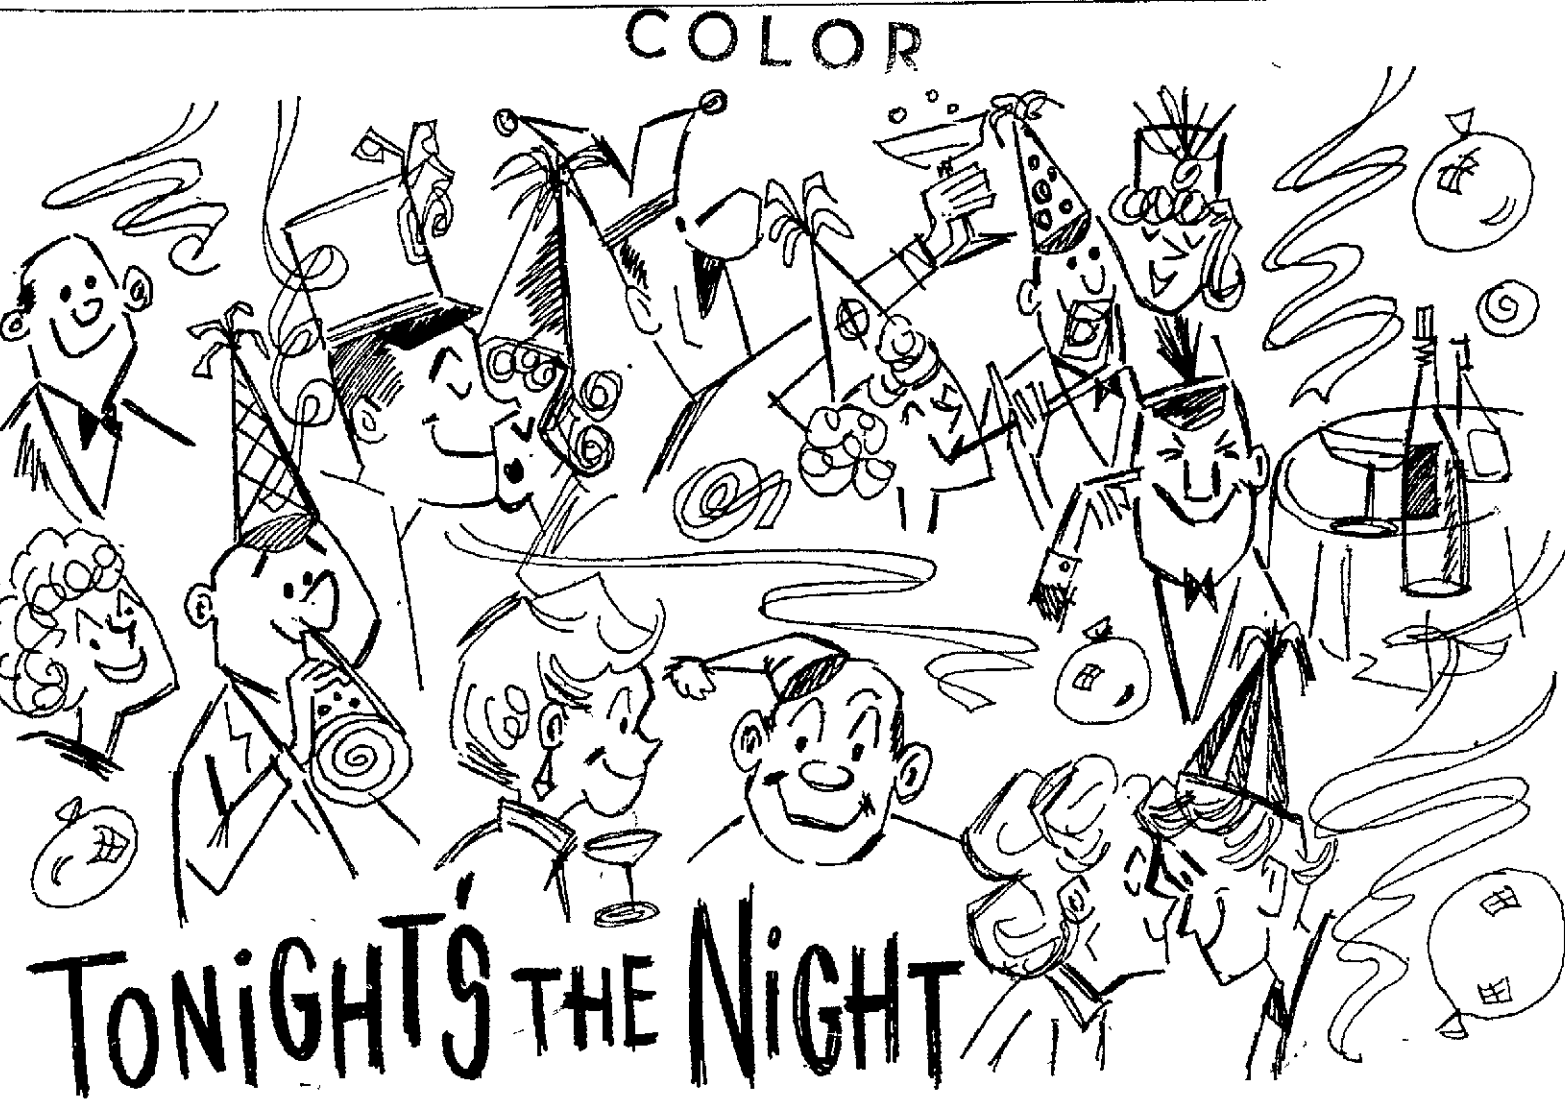

Robin discovered her non status at the school when she didn't receive a report card this fall. Her foster father, Arthur R. Preston, said school officials told him, "So far as we're concerned, she doesn't even exist."

So Preston thought the best way to outfit her computer was to prove Robin was in class. He called the school last month and asked that Robin be brought out of class to prove she was there. But, he said, school officials told him he had probably just brought her in that morning.

After months of squabbling with school officials, Preston was finally assured Thursday that the computer error had been corrected and that it now knows Robin is a student.

But her report card, when it finally reached her, had been filled out by human hand instead of computer readout.

Court Rules Against Caril Fugate

... JUDGES SPLIT 2-1 ON HER BID FOR FREEDOM

St. Louis, Mo. (UPI) — Caril Ann Fugate, whose 1958 travels with her boyfriend, Charles Starkweather, resulted in the death of 11 persons in Nebraska and Wyoming, was denied her freedom Thursday by the U.S. Court of Appeals here.

Miss Fugate, who was 14 years old at the time of the killings, had urged that oral and written confessions used against her at the trial, were not made voluntarily and that her trial attorney was not of her choosing.

She was sentenced to life in prison for aiding and abetting Starkweather in the murder Jan. 17, 1958, of Robert W. Jensen, of Bennet, Neb. Starkweather was convicted of murder and died in the electric chair in June of 1959.

Since her conviction, Miss Fugate has been confined to the Women's Reformatory at York. Her appeal for release was initially denied by the U.S. District Court in Lincoln, Neb.

The opinion Thursday upholding the lower court was written by Appeals Judge Pat Meahaffy and concurred in by U.S. District Judge James H.

Meredith, who was sitting on the Court of Appeals of the Eighth Circuit here.

A dissenting opinion, written by Appeals Judge G. W. Heaney called for Miss Fugate's release.

"Caril was only 14 years old, emotionally and physically immature and had just gone through the seventh grade," Judge Heaney said. "She had no prior arrest. She had just witnessed or been party to a series of 11 hideous murders which could not have helped but traumatize her."

The judge said it was not clear that her father and married sister, although present when the confession was made, were aware of the implications of the statement to law enforcement officials.

In the majority opinion, the judges noted Miss Fugate was eligible for parole but apparently would not seek release "so long as she can bring any federal court action."

Attorney For Caril Fugate Says Legal Battle Probably Not Over

By United Press International
Lincoln attorney James Mc Arthur said Thursday the legal battle to have Caril Ann Fugate exonerated would probably not end with the Federal Circuit Court decision.

"It has always been her idea to be completely exonerated," he said, "and I have no reason to believe she has changed her mind."

"She has always insisted we should go ahead as long as there is any hope whatever and that apparently means all the way to the (U.S.) Supreme Court if necessary," he added.

The circuit court, in its 2-1 decision, noted Miss Fugate has continued her court fight despite the fact she is eligible for parole.

Mc Arthur said she has been eligible to initiate parole proceedings for about a year.

However, the attorney said, the final decision whether to end the legal fight and seek parole would be up to Miss Fugate. He said he would be discussing the circuit court decision with her in the next few days.

Mc Arthur said should the decision to go ahead be made, the first action prior to an appeal to the Supreme Court would be the filing of a motion for rehearing before the circuit court panel.

As to the ruling itself, the attorney said he was "not at all surprised."

And he said he had been wondering when the circuit court would act on the case. Oral arguments, he said, were held before the three judges in December of 1970.

"I was just thinking the other day a whole year has gone by and it looked like we wouldn't hear now until 1972," he said.

SWITCH SEEMS UNLIKELY ...

NU Fieldhouse Still Supported

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of five articles on the legislative session which opens next week.)

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

There is strong sentiment in the Legislature to stick with its hard-fought 1971 decision to finance construction of a new University of Nebraska fieldhouse and a new state office building with cigarette tax revenue.

The 1971 Unicameral increased the cigarette tax by five cents a package, producing an additional $7 million in annual revenue, all of which was earmarked for construction purposes.

And in their only major showdown victory over Gov. J. James Exon, senators enacted the package—which also included funding for a recreation center at the Beatrice State Home for the mentally retarded—over the governor's veto.

Change To Be Urged

Exon will urge the 1972 session to alter the plan, funnel at least some of the new revenue into the state's general fund for other purposes, forego the office building and perhaps turn to bond financing of the fieldhouse.

The fieldhouse (an all-purpose building which would be used for NU basketball, the State Fair and other public events) is to be located at the Fairgrounds.

Lawmakers participating in a questionnaire survey undertaken by The Star favored leaving the 1971 law unchanged by early a 2 to 1 margin.

The vigor with which a number of senators responded, and the sharp arrows aimed at Exon by several of them, indicates that the issue will arouse legislative emotions the second time around.

Firm 'No'

Asked if they would favor transferring some of the new revenue into the general fund, several lawmakers answered underlined or accompanied by exclamation marks.

Among them were Sens. Fred Carstens of Beatrice, J. James Waldron of Callaway, Richard Lewis of Holbrook, Gerald Stromer of Kearney and Robert Clark of Sidney.

"Absolutely not, Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said.

"Nothing has changed the situation with regard to these projects," the sponsor of the 1971 act said.

"To reverse ourselves now will only compound an already complex problem of confronting competing capital construction priorities."

Governor Attacked

Luedtke also poked at the governor: "I, along with many fellow legislators, deeply resent the governor's constant threats to repeal LB87 to cover up his

Common Market Is Seen Being More Independent

•The New York Times

Paris — "I cannot conceive of the European Economic Community ever being anti-American," an official of the Common Market said recently in Brussels. "But I can conceive of it being more independent of decision-making by Washington."

Europeans have long felt that American political support for the community was dwindling, and with the increasingly barbed criticism now being flung both ways across the Atlantic, they see a difficult period of adjustment as a new relationship is formed.

There are some Europeans who go so far as to charge that the United States is trying to break up the Common Market because it has become a strong competitive force that Washington is no longer able to manage.

Reaction Aroused

The attack against Common Market farm and foreign commercial policies published Wednesday by White House economic adviser Peter G. Peterson aroused energetic defensive reactions in Europe.

Peterson accused the community of constructing "tragic" and unjustified barriers against outside farm products and of splitting the world into blocs of influence threatening the postwar trading system.

Lincoln Foundation Accepts $50,000

The executive committee of the Lincoln Foundation Thursday accepted gifts totaling $50,000 from the estates of the daughters of a Lincoln banker and businessman.

And the committee received letter of intent for another gift of $25,000 from a Lincoln couple.

Gifts of $25,000 each were accepted from the estates of the late Berna Ann Miskell and Clara M. Miskell. The funds will go into the foundation's benefactor program.

The women were the daughters of E. W. Miskell, a longtime Lincoln and area banker and businessman who died in 1963.

The letter of intent for another gift of $25,000 to the benefactor program came from Mr. and Mrs. Oliver T. Joy, founders of the Notifier Manufacturing Co. of Lincoln.

In other matters, the committee completed purchase of the last bit of property to be acquired west of the Lincoln Center Building. The purchase was possible through the gift of $85,500 from the Woods Charitable Fund, which built the building and provided funds for the purchase of other land next to the facility.

The land will be developed as a "mini-park."

The committee also approved a participatory grant of $2,500 to Nebraska Wesleyan University to help support a high school jazz band workshop on Feb. 12.

The workshop will allow area students to study for a day under jazz musicians of the Don Ellis Orchestra, which will also present a concert that evening at NWU's auditorium.

The grant was okayed after a review by the foundation's student advisory committee, which includes Michael Swartz of Northeast High School, Tim Davis of Southeast, Laurie Logsdon of East and Jo Shrader of Lincoln High....

The committee also:

- accepted from Mrs. Ruth Traphagen of Lincoln a gift of stock valued at $7,675. The funds will go to the benefactor program, subject to the donor's approval and further gifts.
- accepted a letter of intent to establish a memorial fund for the Lincoln Reading Center, a reading tutorial program, and approved expenditure of $75 for library materials.
- heard from outgoing Foundation President Robert Guenzel that the Lincoln General Hospital Foundation plans to arrange to allow the Lincoln Foundation to handle gifts to the hospital group.

35,000 Acres Of State-Owned School Land Sold During Year

By United Press International

A Nebraska Board of Educational Lands and Funds spokesman said Thursday about 35,000 acres of state-owned school land have been sold during the past year.

Board Executive Director Morris Reynolds said at the beginning of calendar year 1971

Bailey Declines Comment On Story About Son-In-Law

Omaha — Edd H. Bailey, retired president of the Union Pacific Railroad, said Thursday he has no comment about a story in the Wall Street Journal saying that his son-in-law received special consideration in getting contracts to do work for the U.P.

Frank E. Barnett of New York, board chairman and chief executive of the Union Pacific Corp., parent company of the railroad, issued a statement that the railroad has checked into the matters mentioned in the Journal article and "our inquiries to date do not show evidence that there was any financial involvement by any officer or employee of the railroad in any of the transactions."

The story, appearing in Thursday's Wall Street Journal, said that between 1965 and mid-1971, the U.P. engaged in numerous transactions with corporations in which the son-in-law, Tedd Richardson of North Platte, was involved.

"Among other things, Richardson firms purchased and leased land from the railroad, operated a U.P. stockyards facility in town and obtained several good-sized construction contracts during the building of the Bailey yard in North Platte. All told, these transactions came to about $2 million," the story said.

Bailey was president of the railroad from January 1965 to September 1971.

A U.P. spokesman said President John C. Kenefick, who succeeded Bailey, would have no comment.

The U.P. official said, "We have satisfied ourselves that the contracts were negotiated at arm's length and were equitable to both parties."

Richardson also was quoted by the Journal as saying there was nothing wrong with the deals. He said he lost money on some of them and didn't make much on the rest.

Hearings Set For Three In Rape Incident

Preliminary hearings were set Jan. 12 for three men charged in Lancaster County Court Thursday in connection with a Tuesday incident in which two 16-year-old girls were allegedly raped.

Rothie Robert Hackstadt, 27, of 611 So. 20th, was charged with two counts of rape in connection with the incident. County Judge Ralph Slocum set bond at $10,000.

David Cyril Gunsolley, 18, of the City Mission, was charged with kidnapping Mark Peters for the purpose of compelling the performance of an act by another person. Bond was set at $5,000.

Charged with assault with intent to rape was John Allen Snider, 24, of the City Mission. Bond for Snider was set at $3,000.

According to Chief Deputy County Attorney William Blue, charges will also be filed against two others allegedly involved in the incident who are still being sought by authorities.

Lincoln Police arrested two of the men charged Thursday on West O and the third man was apprehended by the Lancaster County Sheriff's office.

According to sheriff's reports, the girls and two male companions said they were parked east of 84th and Leighton when a car stopped in front of their vehicle.

According to information in the report, two of the men in the car pulled the boys from their car and locked them in its trunk after taking their wallets and watches.

The girls told police that the two men drove them in the teenagers' car about nine miles east and a mile north of 14th and O where the alleged rapes took place.

NWU Campaign Nets $27,273

Nebraska Wesleyan University reported Thursday its "great teaching" fund raising campaign this year netted $27,273.

own fiscal shortsightedness regarding the general fund."

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who led the battle to include fieldhouse funding in the package, may be more amenable to a compromise change.

"I can't say at this time," Carpenter responded. "I have an open mind."

Among senators who are ready to consider a compromise of some sort are Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Rudolf Kokes of Ord, Ramey Whitney of Chappell, Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox and William Swanson of Lincoln.

"While I would not favor the funneling of all this tax revenue into the general fund, I might consider a compromise which would still assure completion of the necessary construction," Swanson said.

Office Building

Kokes said the state should forego construction of a new office building at this time.

And if any money is to be earmarked, he said, it should be allocated "to meet one of the most important needs of this state, and that is the development of our water resources."

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, who led the floor fight against the fieldhouse, said he still opposes it.

Sen. C. W. Holmquist of Oakland said he is "amused that the governor, and a few others, would now like to pay interest on bonds in order to build the fieldhouse," when Exon is "not in favor of paying interest on bonds for highway purposes even after the people expressed their willingness to do so."

Change Opposed

Holmquist opposes changing the law. "If it is not going to be used for the purpose for which it was passed, then I am for repealing it," he said.

Other opponents of change include Sens. Glenn Goodrich and George Syas, both of Omaha, Otto Kime of Valentine and Wally Barnett of Lincoln.

The Coliseum now used for NU basketball is "a (fire) hazard to all people who attend," Barnett said. And the state now pays $300,000 or more a year to rent space for agencies which cannot fit into the Capitol, he noted.

"We have established some priorities for use of the five-cent tax and I do not wish to see them changed," Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said.

"After these buildings are paid for, this money should continue to be used for capital construction by legislative direction — and not the governor's whims."

Said Only Way

Sen. Duke Snyder of Omaha said earmarking is "the only way we get anything built in this state. I supported it then. I support it now."

Sen. Walter Epke of York, who originally preferred to use the new revenue to create a capital construction fund for priority projects, said he now thinks "we should go along with what the majority of the legislators voted."

Another senator who wants to leave the law unchanged is Sen. E. Thome Johnson of Fremont, also a member of the State Fair Board.

Against Delay

"A state office building has been needed, and even planned, for several years," he noted. "It should not be delayed any longer."

"The NU fieldhouse is a must and I can't think of any better way or better time to get it," Ziebarth said he is ready to compromise, accepting a proposed plan which would stretch financing of the fieldhouse over a six-year period.

"I would consider some change," Whitney said.

"We must wait and see what alternatives will be offered," Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan agreed.

Bus Passengers To Help Pick 'Driver Of The Month'

Beginning Monday passengers riding on Lincoln city buses will be able to cast their ballots for the "Driver of the Month" award.

Drivers of the Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) will be passing out driver evaluation cards to each passenger — the first step in the new process of selecting the award, according to LTS manager Jerald Rae and Robert Campbell, chairman of the LTS board.

To aid passengers each driver's name will be posted in the front of the bus, Rae noted. Cards may be dropped at six cooperating businesses and posters will be displayed to assist bus passengers in locating the collection boxes.

Each month a committee from the Lincoln League of Women Voters will screen the evaluation cards and recommend three individual drivers' names as recipients of the award. One of these names will be selected by Rae as the Driver of the Month.

Prizes will be announced and awarded monthly through the cooperation and efforts of the American Business Women's Association, Rae said.

Evaluation cards will be available and dropped at the following collection points: City National Bank, First National Bank, Gateway Bank, National Bank of Commerce, Miller & Paine, and Brandeis.

New York Times
News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service
Saigon — The American Command announced Thursday that the intensified bombing of North Vietnam had ended after five days. The announcement was coupled with a strong suggestion that the bombing would be resumed unless the North Vietnamese end their stockpiling of war supplies and halt their challenge to American planes over the Ho Chi Minh Trail. (More on Page 1.)

White House Incensed

Washington — White House officials were said to be highly incensed over recent columns by Jack Anderson quoting verbatim from intelligence digests, State Department cables and even from minutes of secret White House meetings.

Jets For Israel OK'd

Washington — Administration sources said President Nixon had decided in principle during the recent visit of Prime Minister Golda Meir to resume deliveries of Phantom jet fighters to Israel. Discussions on the timing, the number of planes and other details of the sale are expected to begin next month in Washington.

Religious Agreement Told

New York — Leaders of the Roman Catholic and Anglican Churches announced an agreement that removes one of the major stumbling blocks to the eventual reunion of the two churches. The agreement was on the "essential" teachings about holy communion. (More on Page 2.)

Controls To Stay

Washington — Paul W. McCracken, the outgoing chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said he now believed that some government controls over the economy would be necessary even after the current Phase 2 program of controls ends.

Without such controls, he said, inflation would rise faster than is "acceptable."

Tenants Told Not To Pay

Washington — Tenants across the nation were told by the Price Commission to refuse to pay any rent increase next month unless they have already paid the higher rent. (More on Page 2.)

Wall St. Change Urged

New York — A high-level committee of the New York Stock Exchange recommended that the exchange adopt a proposal made by William McChesney Martin Jr. and change its 33-man board of governors to a 21-man board with 10 directors elected from outside the securities industry. The reform would give the public a greater voice in managing the exchange.

Ellsberg, Russo Reindicted

Los Angeles — Twelve criminal charges, including conspiracy, were made against Dr. Daniel Ellsberg by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles looking into the release of the Pentagon Papers. The jury indicted Anthony J. Russo Jr., a former colleague of Dr. Ellsberg's, on four counts. (More on Page 2.)

Russo Surrenders In Court; He And Ellsberg Reindicted

Los Angeles (UPI) — Anthony J. Russo Jr., indicted along with Dr. Daniel Ellsberg on serious new charges of stealing the top secret Pentagon Papers, surrendered in federal court here Thursday.

Russo, who FBI agents said had been eluding them, appeared before U.S. District Judge Harry Prager on a few hours after the sealed, 15-count indictment was announced in Washington.

Bail was set at $100,000 but attorneys for the 35-year-old former Rand Corp. Associate of Ellsberg attempted to have the bond reduced.

Russo spent 47 days in jail or civil contempt when he refused to testify before the grand jury about how parts of the 47-volume study fell into the hands of newspapers. His whereabouts have been unknown since he was freed Oct. 18.

Ellsberg, 40, a senior research fellow at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who publicly acknowledged he was responsible for the original Pentagon Papers leak to the New York Times has been free on $50,000 bond since his original indictment June 28.

Ellsberg Defends It

On Wednesday night, Ellsberg defended the study in

New York, before a panel of Harvard University historians at the American Historical Association who charged that as a history, it was incomplete and of poor quality.

Ellsberg said in New York that the new indictment did not surprise him. "I know the Boston (U.S.) attorney's office has been working on me," he said. "So obviously another indictment was not another surprise."

In a news conference Thursday in New York, Ellsberg said he would plead innocent to the new indictment. "I stole nothing, I did not commit espionage and I am not aware of violating any criminal statute," he said.

Ellsberg also denied that Russo had refused to testify before the grand jury. Russo had offered to testify in public, he said. The government's insistence that the grand jury session be in secret was evidence of "the government's commitment to deception," Ellsberg said.

Superseding Old One

The new, superseding indictment, announced by the office of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, was returned in Los Angeles Wednesday but was not opened until Thursday, presumably because of expectations that Russo would be arrested in the meantime.

Ellsberg was originally indicted on two counts of possessing government documents and converting them to his own use, punishable by a maximum penalty of 20 years' imprisonment and a $20,000 fine. No trial had been scheduled.

The new indictment accuses him of 11 federal crimes plus conspiracy, for which he could receive a maximum of 115 years in prison and $120,000 in fines if convicted.

The new charges include stealing, distributing and refusing to return classified Defense Department documents obtained from Rand, and illegally keeping national defense papers in violation of the 1940 espionage act.

Russo's three counts, plus a charge of conspiracy, carry a maximum penalty of 35 years in prison and a $45,000 fine.

Named as co-conspirators but not under indictment were Vu Van Thai, 52, a former South Vietnamese ambassador to Washington in 1965 who allegedly received one copy of the Pentagon study, and Mrs. Linda Sinay, 28, a Los Angeles advertising firm employee who helped make Xerox copies of the papers.

Dowdy Guilty Of Accepting $25,000 Bribe

Baltimore, Md. (AP) — A federal court jury convicted Rep. John V. Dowdy on all eight counts in his $25,000 federal bribery conspiracy case Thursday after an 8-week-long trial.

The government had contended that Dowdy, a 10-term legislator, was given the money in a bribe case in an Atlanta airport Sept. 22, 1965, as he was en route to a speaking engagement in Texas.

More than 80 witnesses testified during the trial which was delayed briefly earlier this month when Dowdy was hospitalized five days with a stomach ailment.

The Texas Democrat was indicted in March 1970 on charges that he helped sidetrack a Justice Department investigation into a Maryland home improvements firm in return for the money.

The congressman, whose attorney plans to appeal for a new trial, faces a maximum sentence of 40 years imprisonment and fines of $40,000 — five years and $5,000 on each count.

Eruption Kills Four In Chile

Pucon, Chile (AP) — Villarica Volcano erupted over a southern lake resort area Thursday and four persons were reported killed. Another 35 were listed as missing.

Lava pouring down the slopes of the 9,186-foot volcano cut off roads and bridges and the government said rescue operations were hampered.

More than 1,000 persons were hastily evacuated from the communities of Villarica, Pucon, Lincanray and Conarpe, all on Lake Villarica about 375 miles south of Santiago, Chile's capital.

Agreement On Eucharist Doctrine Told

London (UPI) — Anglican and Roman Catholic church leaders have reached "substantial agreement" on the doctrine of the eucharist, also known as mass or holy communion, in what theologians of both faiths termed the most important statements since the Reformation, it was announced Friday.

"We believe that we have reached substantial agreement on the doctrine of the eucharist," an announcement from the Anglican Church information office said.

"It is our hope that in view of the agreement . . . this doctrine will no longer constitute an obstacle to the unity we seek," the announcement said.

The church information office said the agreement was reached by the Anglican and Roman Catholic International Commission of Bishops and Theologians at the group's third meeting which ended in Windsor, England, Sept. 7.

"Afterward, prominent members of the commission described it as the most important statement since the Reformation for Anglicans and Roman Catholics," the church information office said.

The document of agreement now must be presented to the official authorities of both churches for ratification.

The announcement said Anglicans and Roman Catholics agreed to see the eucharist as a "memorial" of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

"The memorial is no mere calling to mind of a past event or of its significance, but the churches' effective proclamation of God's mighty acts," the statement said.

The statement said the essential point on which both churches agreed was that "the sacramental body and blood of the Saviour are present as an offering to the believer awaiting his welcome."

"Through faith, Christ's presence becomes no longer just a presence for the believer, but also a presence with him . . . Christ's body and blood become really present and are really given," the statement said.

Bhutto Wants Indian Talks If Attitude Changes

By The Associated Press
Pakistan's new president said Thursday he is willing to sit down and talk with leaders of India, which thrashed his nation's armed forces in a war over Bangladesh.

But Zulfikar Ali Bhutto said he would talk with the Indians only if they demonstrated a change in attitude toward Pakistan.

Bhutto maintains that India never accepted Pakistan as a nation even as far back as 1947 when the British left the subcontinent. The British created East and West Pakistan because the two areas, separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, were chiefly Moslem. India is chiefly Hindu.

No Mention Made

A Radio Pakistan broadcast summarizing Bhutto's speech made no mention of East Pakistan, now called Bangladesh, as previous broadcasts have done since Bhutto took over the presidency last week.

But Bhutto was quoted as saying: "Pakistan does not want any part of India, nor will it allow India to occupy any part of Pakistan's territory."

Bhutto said he was prepared to confer with Indian leaders "as the genuine representative of the people of Pakistan."

"I will not sacrifice Pakistan's interests at any cost and will continue to strive to vindicate its honor."

Federation Proposed

Earlier in the day Bhutto was reported by government sources as proposing a loose federation of Bangladesh and West Pakistan along the lines of the one Egypt, Syria and Libya have formed. The informants said Bhutto made the proposal to Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader held in West Pakistan since March.

Rawalpindi expressed doubt that the sheik would agree.

Bhutto also appealed to Pakistan's 22 richest families to surrender their foreign currency in the interest of the country. Passports belonging to members of these families have been seized.

He said the government would pay them at bonus rates and would not resort to any further probe into their wealth.

Budget Okayed

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — Syria's parliament approved a record budget of $753 million for the 1972 fiscal year, Damascus Radio announced.

Nixon Grumbles But Signs

Key Biscayne, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon announced Thursday he has signed with misgivings an emergency unemployment compensation law that he said "sets up another program of public welfare."

The legislation will permit some 750,000 jobless workers to collect up to 52 weeks of unemployment compensation at an estimated cost to the taxpayers of $454 million.

The extended benefits will go to the unemployed in 11 states and Puerto Rico where joblessness has been most extensive.

Nixon, in a statement, said, "The major reason for my misgivings is that this legislation undermines the insurance concept of the unemployment compensation program. It sets up another program of public welfare."

Under the regular compensation system, benefits are financed through employer contributions to a trust fund. The new law departs this concept and taps the general treasury.

Extended benefits would be available in Alaska, California, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont and Washington.

These states were eligible because they meet a requirement that their level of insured unemployment, plus workers who have exhausted their benefits, amount to a rate of at least 6.5% of the labor force.

Some Tenants May Pay Old Rent Another Month

Washington (UPI) — The official publication of new federal rent control regulations gives tenants who were faced with a Jan. 1 increase at least another month at their present rent, Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson said Thursday.

In a statement accompanying notice that the rent rules went into effect Dec. 29, Grayson said tenants renting on a month to month basis or shorter rental period need pay no more rent for January than they did for December unless they paid their January rent before Wednesday.

Grayson said tenants who were notified of a Jan. 1 rent increase but who did not pay it before Dec. 29 were not liable for the higher amount because no "transaction" at the new rent had occurred before the regulations took effect.

Retailers Told Where To Put Price-Lid List

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission Thursday spelled out where retailers with sales of $100,000 or more a year must post their freeze-period price ceilings so that customers can easily find them.

They "must be easily accessible to the customer and must not require him to ask a store employee for access to the information," the commission said.

In addition, it said, all retailers must display prominently on each floor at least one sign — no smaller than 22 by 28 inches — announcing the availability of base price information for all items that are not posted or required to be posted.

"Base Price Information Request Forms must be available in at least one location on each selling floor of the establishment and the retailer must respond in writing to such written requests within 48 hours after the request is received," the commission said.

Peabody Seeks No. 2 Spot

Concord, N.H. (AP) — Former Gov. Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts, a Democrat, announced Thursday he'll run for vice president. He said he will enter New Hampshire's early-bird primary to give the people, rather than party bosses, a chance to select a candidate.

Peabody said he was running for the No. 2 spot because several national Democratic study committees have recommended that vice presidential hopefuls "go the same route" as presidential candidates.

"Candidates now have to run," he said. "The people have to select them and not the party bosses at the convention."

The 51-year-old Washington lawyer who lives in Cambridge, Mass., said he would spend the weekend in the state gathering the 1,000 signatures needed to enter his name on the March 7 ballot.

Survey Places Eateries Near 'Marginal Level'

... AG CHIEF DELAYS SIGNING PACT

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

An unofficial survey of 25 Lincoln eating establishments found that the sanitation status of the facilities "is approaching a marginal level" requiring immediate attention.

As a result of this survey, State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Thursday that he will not sign a food and drink agreement with the City of Lincoln until the Capital City's eating facilities comply.

The purpose of the agreement is to avoid duplication of sanitation inspections by city and state officials. Under the contract, the city agrees to take over inspection and enforcement duties from the state of all food and drink establishments within its limits.

"Want To Be Sure"

"I find the agreement itself very acceptable," Kreuscher said, "but I want to be sure that the city's facilities have a high sanitation level."

"Until they do this I will not sign."

The survey was compiled from August 30 to Sept. 2, 1971 in Lincoln by the Food and Drug Administration as part of a training program for a food service sanitation survey officer.

Although Lincoln Health Department officials requested the survey, the survey said:

"The training was not intended to appraise Lincoln's food-service establishment sanitation program; however the following comments may help you in appraising your program."

Score Of 37

The random survey gave Lincoln's eating facilities a demerit score of 37 which put them in Sanitation Level IM — or above the acceptable range of 21 to 30 demerits and just 3 demerits below the unacceptable level.

The report lists 20 frequently encountered violations, including 3 facilities operating without licenses.

Part of the explanation for the discrepancy between the standards and the conditions lies in the sanitation code.

A Difference

The Lincoln-Lancaster

Restaurant Ordinance and Code is based on the 1943 edition of Public Health Service recommended codes. However, the survey was done according to the 1962 manual which incorporates new technical knowledge in providing for improved food practices.

The survey said: "The adoption of this model sanitation ordinance and code ... is strongly recommended."

Lincoln Assistant Sanitation Director Orville DeFraun defended the Health Department saying:

A Lot Of Work

"We've been trying to upgrade the sanitation code for quite a while. It's a lot of work — we've had to consult with all those concerned. Deaths and resignations have hampered us."

"We started in 1959 to bring the city's code up to date. We've just finished reviewing it and have given it to City Attorney Dick Wood. Now it's up to the mayor and the City Council."

"I assume when we've gotten the new code we will ask for another survey so we can have the agreement."

Doesn't Approve

DeFraun said he did not approve of Kreuscher's using the survey since it was unofficial. He also accused the Ag Director of using it as a "club" to insure compliance.

When asked why the city would want to assume the state's duties, DeFraun said:

"It isn't that we want to do it particularly. It's an unnecessary duplication to have one inspector come in on Monday and another on Tuesday. Besides restaurant owners have requested an end to the duplicate visits."

The assistant director noted that his department has preferred a more comprehensive ordinance which include licensing grocery stores and processing plants.

Fund-Raiser

However, Kreuscher has opposed the Comprehensive Food Ordinance as a "fund-raising" measure.

The ordinance would raise the initial licensing fee from $10 for a restaurant or cafe to $50.

Department of Health Director George Underwood could not be reached for comment.

Police Arrest Five Kearney Escapees

Lincoln police Thursday apprehended five escapees from the Kearney State Boys Training School in two separate incidents in northeast Lincoln.

Two of the youths were taken into custody after they were spotted by Motorcycle Officer Mike Davis while they were attempting to gas a pickup truck near 56th and Holdrege. One of the youths fled on foot but was apprehended a short time later by other officers who converged on the area, according to Police Inspector Robert Sawdon.

The pair was identified as Robert Schnieder, 16, of Deshler, and Michael DeBoodt, 16, of Bellevue.

Others Soon Nabbed

The other three escapees were taken into custody less than two hours later with the aid of the police helicopter.

Sawdon said the three escapees and another youth were spotted near 32nd and Benton by Officer Jan Hansen after they had apparently hitchhiked a ride into the area.

Sawdon said the youths "broke and ran" after spotting the police cruiser but the police helicopter directed converging ground units in the apprehension of the escapees.

They were identified as Stanley Morris, 17, and Joey Jones, 17, both of Lincoln, and Howard Shunrock, 17, of Norfolk.

A 15-year-old youth, identified as the brother of one of the escapees, was also taken into custody.

Dining Hall Detail

A spokesman for the Kearney State Boys Training School said the five youths escaped from a dining hall detail Wednesday evening.

Sawdon said that Schnieder and DeBoodt traveled to Lincoln in a pickup truck that was reported stolen in Kearney.

The other three escapees claimed they had hitchhiked to Lincoln after sleeping in a haystack during the night.

Sawdon said the five escapees would be held for Kearney authorities.

Police said the 15-year-old has been wanted since Nov. 18 for parole violation from Kearney, auto theft, forgery and obtaining merchandise under false pretenses.

Judge Allows Dr. J. B. Zee To Continue As A Hypnotist

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County District Court Judge James Backley granted a temporary restraining order to Dr. Jay B. Zee, to allow him to continue as a hypnotist at an Omaha night club.

Dr. Zee, his wife and the part owner of the Suite 4 nightclub, were arrested by police vice unit officers for violation of a 1911 law banning public shows of hypnotism.

Sgt. Robert Caruso said a vice unit officer was at the club Wednesday night, but further arrests were not made because "the (Dr. Zee) changed his hypnotism act to a memory act."

New State Solon Pledges 'To Work For Little Man'

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

South Sioux City — Nebraska's new state senator from the 17th District says he will work in the Unicameral for the "little man," and he has the background to give his pledge credibility.

On Thursday, when he was sworn in to replace retired Sen. Elmer Wallway of Emerson, LeRoy Pfister had been a barber for exactly 25 years. As a small businessman himself, he feels he is well qualified to represent the small farmer and small businessman — who, by his estimate, account for some 95% of his constituency.

"I'm all for the small farmer, the small businessman and the small community," the newly appointed legislator said. "They're the backbone of our country, and when you lose them, you haven't got any backbone left."

Appointed by Gov. J. J. Exon Dec. 17, Pfister, who will be 47 Sunday, has not yet decided what sort of legislation he would like to concentrate on in the Unicameral, but he would like to involve himself in veterans' affairs. Otherwise, he said, "if any legislation comes up that I have anything to do with, I'm sure going to stand up for the little guy."

Since his appointment, a flood of leftover bills, materials from lobbyists, background information and commission reports has been arriving at his South Sioux City home — more than he can possibly digest before the session begins.

There would be better understanding between government and its constituents, Pfister feels, if "complication" in legislative language could be simplified so that "the layman could understand it."

Briefings Wanted

Pfister is hoping for some briefing sessions before the Legislature convenes Tuesday, Jan. 4, to fill him in on all the issues he will face during this year's whirlwind 60-day election-year legislative session. However, he has been keeping closely informed on major issues via the newspapers and has already taken stands on the more important and controversial ones.

Like legislative language, the tax structure is filled with needless complications, Pfister feels. The personal property tax, for example, seems "repetitious" because farmers must pay sales tax on farm equipment when it is purchased, then pay personal property tax on it year after year. He is in favor of partial exemptions for livestock, farm machinery, grain, business equipment and business inventory, but would prefer the governor's exemption plan to that proposed by Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton.

Sen. Burbach's plan would provide a 90% exemption for those items after seven years, whereas Gov. Exon's plan would eventually provide a 50% exemption after six years, with a $1,000 maximum refund.

"I think Burbach would have had a good bill if he had just used different percentages," Pfister said.

Pfister, like Gov. Exon, believes that food should be exempted from the state sales tax. Pfister favors the elimination of the $7 food sales tax credit on the grounds that it doesn't benefit those Nebraskans who need it most — people who don't make enough money to file a tax return and are consequently ineligible for the tax credit.

NU Officials Target

The new legislator stands behind the governor in his running budget battle with NU administrators. "A study of what their money goes for has enabled them (NU administrators) to economize," he said. "That's the way it is with a lot of things. If you could eliminate the cost of paper alone you'd save a lot of money."

On the issue of increased state aid to schools, Pfister said: "I'm afraid that when you ask for more state aid, you're asking for more state control," he said he would like to see "school board-run schools, not state-run schools."

On the other hand, he would support a proposal by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh to eliminate conglomerate farming enterprises, because, he says, they constitute a threat to the small farmer.

Owner and operator of the White Way Barber Shop here, Pfister said the trend toward long hair has threatened the barber trade but he has kept his business healthy through self-discipline.

"Discipline is the name of the game," Pfister said. "You discipline yourself all the time. I think when young people say they don't like discipline, they just mean they don't want us to be phony" about enforcing order.

"When I think of all the homes I've seen where the children ran and rave, it makes me all the prouder of my own children — and I haven't had to use a bullwhip to do it, either," Pfister says he is "all for peaceful dissent" but "can't stand violence against what I believe in."

Five Children

He and his wife, Gloria, have five children — Rebecca, Pamela and Mary at home; Angela, working as a secretary in the Navy Dept. in Washington, D.C.; and David, an Airman 2nd Class in the Air Force.

Besides the barber shop, Pfister has a distributorship for Amway home care products, and he and his wife sell Holiday Magic cosmetics. His decision to run for reelection when his term expires next year will depend not only on "how things go in the Legislature," but how well he can maintain his businesses on a senator's $4,800 salary. Barber Bill Wenger will run Pfister's shop in his absence.

The new senator's civic activities include the Knights of Columbus, the South Sioux City Optimist Club (of which he was charter president) and the American Legion.

Pfister said he has been personally acquainted with Exon for several years but that his only political connection with the governor was the campaign work he did last year.

A registered Democrat, Pfister nevertheless insists that he will remain nonpartisan in the Legislature.

Doyle Defends Record Against GOP Charges

Omaha (AP) — The Democratic director of the State Highway Department defended his agency's performance in response to a Republican charge that available federal highway money isn't being claimed by the department.

Thomas Doyle of Omaha said, "We only failed to utilize 71 cents" during the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

Doyle, an appointee of Gov. J. James Exon, took office last January.

He said in the current fiscal year the department has budgeted for $74.8 million in highway funds, including $39 million in federal money, "all that is available." The figure is nearly $10 million more than the department spent the year before, Doyle said.

'Nearling Completion'

Republican State Chairman Milan Bish of Grand Island had confirmed earlier in the day that his party was "nearling completion of an analysis of the Democratic (administration) highway record on the basis of the facts."

The Omaha World-Herald obtained a copy of the study, which bases its comments on financial information supplied by Transportation Secretary John Volpe's office.

The GOP report said it formed its conclusions after taking the amounts of federal money obligated by Nebraska and other states as of Nov. 17, 1971, and comparing those figures with a summary of a year ago, when Republican Norbert T. Tiemann was governor.

Doyle challenged this approach and said the Nov. 17 date falls in the middle of the second quarter of the fiscal year and does not take into account a "substantial letting — more than $10 million — of contracts in December."

'Totally Inaccurate'

He labeled as "totally inaccurate" the GOP charge that the state as of Nov. 17 had "failed to take advantage of any extra federal money" that had been made available.

The Republican report had charged:

"In one year, Nebraska has dropped, measured by its use of available federal highway money, from the top 10 states to 10th from the bottom."

The report said the conclusion was reached after comparing the amounts of federal money obligated by Nebraska and other states as of Nov. 17, 1971, compared with a summary a year ago.

Exon was in Miami Wednesday and was not immediately available for comment.

Omaha Police Arrest Pair Of Fortune Tellers

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Police vice squad, busy recently with topless dancers, hypnotists, alleged obscene movies and even female impersonators, now has turned its attention to fortune tellers.

Two vice unit officers had their fortunes told and then charged Ruby Marks, 48, and Kathy Marks, 18, with fortune telling for profit. The women are free on $500 bond each pending a Jan. 13 Municipal Court appearance.

They were arrested on warrants Tuesday night at their residence after they allegedly read the palms of two officers, police said. The officers said read the palms of two officers, fortune-telling before having their palms read.

Sgt. Norman Rollins of the vice unit said a 1967 city ordinance makes it a misdemeanor "for any person to read or foretell the future in the life of another person in exchange for money or property."

Unwritten 'Edict' Cuts State's Mental Patients

Omaha (AP) — Two members of the Douglas County Board of Mental Health said fewer Douglas County residents are being accepted as mental patients at state hospitals because of an unwritten "edict" designed to cut down state hospital patient numbers.

Marvin Reifschneider, district court clerk, and Dr.

Chester Farrell, made the comments at a meeting Reifschneider said he called because "there are some things which need answering in the Health Planning Council of the Midlands report."

The report, presented Dec. 6 to the Douglas County Commissioners, said Douglas County Hospital patients under mental health hold orders are staying about five days longer than voluntary patients.

The report also said associated costs, now attributable to County Hospital are under the health board's control.

Reifschneider and Dr. Farrell said the slowdown in accepting patients into state hospitals is the primary reason for the backup at County Hospital.

Dr. Farrell said that Dr. Robert Osborne, medical director for the Department of Institutions, accidentally told him that the state hospitals may be phased out by 1975.

In order to cut state hospital patient numbers, the hospitals are accepting fewer and fewer patients, he said.

Dr. Farrell and Reifschneider said the cutback was an unwritten "edict" in response to a question asking if there was anything in writing from the State Department of Institutions regarding the cutback.

Sen. Chambers Will Speak At Omaha Tech High School

Omaha (AP) — State Sen. Ernest Chambers says arrangements have been made for him to speak before students at Omaha Tech High School next Wednesday afternoon.

The School Community Advisory Board recommended that Chambers be allowed to address Tech students in the aftermath of a lunchtime disturbance at the school Dec. 16. It was one of eight recommendations given to Omaha School District officials.

The advisory board has been critical of school policies in the past.

Chambers said Wednesday night he will "emphasize to the students that if they don't come to school to learn as much as they can about as many things as they can, then they're cheating themselves."

Chambers said he had sought to speak at the school several times in the past prior to the disturbance, and "you couldn't put a finger on" what led to arrangements being made for his speaking at Tech.

Chambers, a Negro, said he will tell the students, who are mostly black, that "we blacks don't become educated to be workers and servers of society — but to be leaders and problem solvers."

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

As most people realize, there are a lot of benefits from football besides the sheer pleasures of the game. Football tends to instill in its participants a sense of discipline and exposes them to the process of decision-making that will be so important to them in later years.

These, of course, are matters that are commonly associated with athletics. A different twist on the subject comes from two black members of the Alabama football squad, the team to be faced by the Huskers in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 1.

Both of these black players explained that they were uncertain about attending Alabama, feeling that their entry into a situation that had been all white would create a lot of problems for them. But they found no problems and are now delighted that they chose Alabama for their college days.

This would not have happened 10 years ago. Ten years ago, none of the southern schools would play a black athlete, but virtually all of them are playing black athletes today. This backs up the feeling of most people that the old system of discrimination has largely been destroyed.

This does not mean that there is no discrimination, because there still is. There are still pockets of discrimination in many aspects of life but such discrimination is no longer the characteristic of our society that it once was.

It is not the universally accepted practice that it was and is the personal code of fewer and fewer people as time goes by. There is no question that the back of discrimination has been broken, even though it has not yet totally died.

But we have moved to a new plateau in this area of our national life. The challenge now is found in the area as it existed throughout our past. While we have largely eliminated discrimination, its by-products remain in large number.

Far too many blacks remain unemployed and many of the black race remain in the disadvantaged class of citizens. They are not alone, however, but are joined by people of all races and creeds who, somehow, have never become a part of the mainstream of American life.

Their greatest problem now is not discrimination, although many of them may be unconvinced of this, but rather, the failure of our economic and political systems to adequately provide for all their members. This is not an indictment of those systems, which have served the nation well.

What conditions show are the weaknesses that remain in our systems. Putting it another way, it is obvious that we have not reached perfection, because we have millions of people who lack an adequate standard of living.

This is nothing more than a simple recognition of the practical reality of the times. It does not call for any kind of revolution or wholesale changes in our fundamental beliefs but it does challenge us to do a better job of things than we have done in the past.

It challenges us to reach for the perfection that has, to date, eluded us.

In breaking the stranglehold of discrimination, our nation has come a long way and this is a credit to the nation in many ways. It was not done without sacrifice and was not done easily but the change did take place, which is more than is accomplished by most nations.

And there is a day somewhere in our future when we will have crossed the next barrier to the progress of mankind, when we will have raised all citizens to a minimum level of existence. The time will come when we will have realized the full potential of our human resources.

Today, we still lack the knowledge and the wealth to reach the human goals we would like but we are showing constant improvement in both areas. We have at least bought the concept of the equality of all mankind and now face the challenge of implementing it.

Dentists Benefiting From Our Tensions

NEW YORK — America's dentists, who once made a living off people who ate too much candy and bought too few toothbrushes, are now doing a thriving business on the nation's anxiety and/or boredom propensities.

Boredom, it seems, can cause teeth to loosen and fall out.

So can stress and worry.

"We are living in the age of anxiety, and people express their intense feelings and frustrations by clenching and grinding their teeth," says Dr. Marvin Simring, associate professor at New York University's College of Dentistry. This injures gums, and helps to spread infection.

In addition, Simring told a recent N.Y. dental meeting, emotional tensions contract the blood vessels around the roots of the teeth, reducing the blood supply to the gums.

When I heard this, I couldn't help thinking how ironic it all is. Every time I visit my dentist, saturated with optimism and tranquilizers, I feel at ease as we chat about how everything is going for each of us. This reprieve goes on for maybe 20 seconds, and then he picks up a piece of equipment.

Whatever it is he picks up — it can be only a little mirror — makes me abruptly anxious. I was fine when I came in, and now suddenly I'm a dental mental case, with contracted blood vessels gumming up my gums.

Just what the doctor ordered for good business.

Dr. Maynard K. Hine, D.D.S. (and other honorary letters too numerous to mention), told us that "there's no doubt whatever that some time in the future all tooth decay will be prevented."

But new eras bring new problems. And he laughed confidently as he added that we shouldn't worry about the nation's dentists going out of business. "Don't worry about us," he said specifically. "The longer you keep decay away, the more business we'll have in trying to hold sound teeth in the mouth surrounded by all that soft tissue.

"In other words, periodontology — the art of treating the tissue or membrane of teeth — will become increasingly necessary." Because stress, anxiety and boredom are at work on our dental underpinnings.

Curing periodontal problems is much costlier than filling cavities, of course. In fact, some friends I know have decided that psychiatry to cure their anxieties is a whole lot cheaper than periodontal work to cure their anxiety-caused dental problems.

But, as Dr. Simring points out, it's anxiety-reducing (and therefore periodontally palliative) to know that such problems can be cured. It is accomplished by applying plastic surgery techniques to the mouth — a technique which, curiously, can strengthen your mouth while weakening your psyche.

So there it is. Tension causes tooth problems. Tooth problems call for dentists. Dentists create tension. Tension causes... well, these problems you can really sink your teeth into.

By the way, a big step in the prevention of decay is the discovery that hamsters pass along dental caries through kissing (or whatever it is that hamsters do mouth to mouth).

Asked whether this means that human beings are passing along dental woes to spouses and friends, Dr. Hine observed, "The hamster discovery is an intriguing lead, and it might be fun to organize a research project. You know, get together a group of men and women who don't have caries, and urge them to — I'm sure I'd have plenty of volunteers.

'Listen, For Just A Little More, We Can Get A Real One'

Focus On Drunk Driving

Herewith is a plea that if Lincolniters are going to drink and drive over the New Year's holiday weekend — and beyond — they will drink and drive responsibly. We are not touting celebrating, nor are we advising against it; we are only pointing out again the dangers inherent in driving while intoxicated.

The dangers are obvious and constant: death, serious injury, property damage, financial and job loss or inconvenience due to the loss of driving privileges. Not to mention the remorse and mental anguish attendant thereto. But fewer people are mindful of those dangers during the holiday season than at any other time of the year.

It isn't as if the Lincoln Police Department has been easy on drunken drivers in the past. It has been respectably tough on that score. Beginning this holiday season, however, the intoxicated motorist has and will continue to stand a greater chance of being picked up then he did before.

The city, through the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Program, which is in coordination with the police department and the courts, is enlarging the focus on the drinking and driving problem. At the present time, seven specialized officers — three two-man patrol cars and a "swing man" in limited coordination with the police helicopter — are patrolling the city on the lookout only for drunk drivers. The newest chemical testing equipment is available to the Lincoln officers.

There has been a significant increase in the number of drinking and driving-related arrests since mid-December.

City officials point out that there is no attempt to badger the average motorist. Cars will not be stopped indiscriminately. Patrol cars will not be parked around the corner from bars at closing time as a matter of course. "We don't presume to encroach on the drinking privilege of the motoring public," said a safety project spokesman. "But we don't want the drunk driver to threaten the motoring public at large. Toughness is not unreasonable compared to the magnitude of the problem."

The warning to the drunken driver is obvious.

Fire From The Right

Much has been said of the old conservative, communist-baiting, single-minded Nixon as compared to the new, politically practical President Nixon who has gained an out-of-the-shadows-into-the-sunlight sense of historical purpose.

It is being said because the President's inclination to adapt — although belatedly at times — to a changing world has gained him a broader base of support among the American people than he or his supporters probably could have imagined.

He is not a particularly charismatic man and the Republican Party is a minority party. Yet, Nixon at this time at least has to be considered ahead in his bid for re-election. Rep. John Ashbrook is not happy, however. At the behest of a clique of conservative men of letters, Ashbrook is running in the primaries against the President in order to force Nixon back to those principles which Ashbrook thinks got him elected in 1968.

We think there were a variety of reasons Nixon was elected — or, why Humphrey was not elected — in 1968, and not all of them are embraced by Ashbrook. Nevertheless, the Ohio congressman feels Nixon reneged on 1968 campaign promises to reduce federal spending, to maintain military superiority over the Russians, and to oppose a guaranteed annual income and wage-price controls. He is further piqued by the China initiatives. Ashbrook wants from the President a reaffirmation of support for Taiwan, an increase in the defense budget, an indication that the family assistance welfare plan is no longer high on the administration's priority list and an announcement in short order that Spiro Agnew will not be dumped from the ticket.

Ashbrook sounds somewhat like left-wing liberals who would rather see the Democrats lose the White House than have a Humphrey or Jackson or even a Muskie elected. He would see the GOP go down in flames on a right-wing platform.

Nixon is far from a liberal and would have difficulty qualifying for moderate credentials. But he won in 1968 and can again in 1972. The GOP is better off in Nixon's hands than it is buckling under to the old-line advocates of privilege and lost causes.

TOM WICKER

Year's End Brings Forth The Sounding Brass; Reason Lost In Boast, Brag, Bluster And Bluff

WASHINGTON — In the year-end flood of self-congratulation now flowing from the Nixon administration, there seem to be one or two currents really worth talking about. This is fortunate, for the end of 1971 and the dread onslaught of 1972 mean that the season of hyperbole is upon us; what the Republicans say they have wrought, the Democrats must soon put asunder, and heaven help the man in search of calm appraisal or sweet reason.

So it was when Hebert G. Klein and Clark MacGregor thumped the tub for President Nixon's 1971 performance. It was full of bold action, daring innovation and historic achievements, to hear them tell it, in a performance of programmed sincerity reminiscent of the hosannas and huzzas the administration sent up for itself a year ago when it announced the coming splendor of the New American Revolution. Neither Klein nor MacGregor dwelt much upon this revolution, which is incomplete, to say the least.

But these public servants are not to be blamed. Their rhetorical tone is set from the top. It was, after all, Nixon himself who referred to the first moon landing as the biggest happening since the creation and to the recent monetary agreement as the greatest in the history of the world.

Klein and MacGregor were, in any case, talking mostly about the past, which every man can judge for himself. Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Slans was standing on shifter sands when he proclaimed a sort of Second Coming of the American economy, with inflation having been "stopped cold," unemployment dropping "precipitously" and prosperity on the farm — even for those many who don't receive fat federal cotton subsidies. If it is confidence the economy needs, you can't fault Slans for failure to encourage it, no matter how the pay board may be fumbling in the background.

By comparison to this chorus with its lush Fred Waring orchestration, the Democrats so far have been mild enough in their year-end claims, and Chairman Larry O'Brien even conceded that the President's foreign policy initiatives had brought him political profit in 1971. But the primaries and the election-year congressional session are just around the corner, and if 1972 comes, can Democratic counterattack be far behind?

Maybe that is why, amid the sounding brass, a couple of muted notes seemed so interesting — even so promising. Against the usual American political background of boast, brag, bluster and con, it does not take much in the way of originality or practicality to catch the eye and ear.

H.E.W. Secretary Elliott Richardson certainly did that, with his suggestion that the administration may accept for the federal government a major share of the cost of public schools. This would have at least two profoundly important effects. It would be aimed at equalizing the investment in public education made in poor and wealthy communities, and it would relieve the crushing burden that the local property tax has almost everywhere become.

Another welcome note was struck by John Volpe, the ever-enthusiastic secretary of transportation. He predicted that 1972 would see the opening

Thoughts Of Young Leaders

Anyone who wants to enter the new year with a peek at what's going on in the minds of the leaders of the new generation of voters could spend some valuable time analyzing a national opinion survey published in the fall.

The survey, of 23,000 high school leaders, was undertaken in the summer of 1971 by the Merit Publishing Co. of Northfield, Ill.

It provides interesting reading in its some 60 pages of answers to 10 questions on subjects ranging from U.S. foreign policy to sexual relations.

The young people said, for example, that ending the war in Southeast Asia should be the nation's top priority. Half said they approved of premarital sexual intercourse, and 57% said they would consider engaging in sexual relations if the possibility of pregnancy and parental disapproval were erased from the scene.

On responses to sample ballots, the kids said they would give their vote to any Democratic candidate (except Hubert Humphrey) in a race against Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

On other questions, less than half said they had tasted alcoholic beverages, while huge majorities said they had never tried hard drugs.

The students who participated in the survey are among the 85,000 young people featured in the 1970-71 edition of "Merit's Who's Who Among American High School Students."

All the youngsters were high school juniors and seniors last year, selected by school principals and guidance counselors because of their high achievement in academics, athletics, activities and community service.

Most of them are now college freshmen. All will be eligible to vote in the '72 elections.

Questions were written by students themselves, and answers were computer-tabulated by total response and according to breakdowns for sex, race, religion, geographical region, type of school and type of community.

On a question asking them to say what the nation's priorities

Milan Wall
All Potential

should be, the students gave ending the war, eliminating pollution and the war on poverty as their top three choices.

Herewith are some of their other responses, according to topical breakdowns:

FOREIGN POLICY:
—Responding before China's entry into the United Nations, 79% said they would favor such a move. At the same time 87% said the U.S. should renew diplomatic relations with the Asian giant.

MILITARY SERVICE:
—43% of the boys said they would consider applying to their draft boards for a conscientious objector status.
—82% of the boys said they favored an all-volunteer army, but 79% said they wouldn't volunteer if there was one.

DOMESTIC ISSUES:
—Barely half said the nation's press provides fair and accurate coverage of most national issues, and about the same portion said they believe the government "manages" the news.

—71% said their local law-enforcement agency is doing an excellent or a satisfactory job. Of the respondents who answered "poor" to that question, the largest percentage (34%) were from rural areas and small towns.

—An overwhelming majority (91%) said the government is doing too little about pollution.

—More than 80% said "yes" when asked if they would pay additional taxes and live with fewer modern conveniences to help control pollution, and a similar number said they would be willing to limit their families to two children to ease overpopulation problems.

POLITICS:
—Nearly 80% believe political and social change can come through the established system of government.

—On party preferences, 34% said Democrat, 20% Republican and 34% independent.

—On sample presidential ballots, Muskie has the strongest sympathies of the young voters, garnering 57% to Nixon's 28%. In races against Nixon, Humphrey would lose, while McGovern, Kennedy and Lindsay would win, as would "other Democrat."

—51% said "no" when asked if their elected officials are doing a good job representing them.

DRUGS:
—Only 3% approve of use of hard drugs, while 30% approve of smoking marijuana.

—Although only very small numbers said they had used various hard drugs listed, 76% said they believed they could readily purchase them.

—55% said their schools have no drug education program, and 70% said their communities do not have good, accessible counseling and treatment programs for young drug users.

SEX:
—34% said most of their sex education came from friends, while 15% said "home," 9% said "school," and only 3% said "church."

—50% said "yes," 35% said "no" when asked if they approved of premarital sexual intercourse.

—90% believe in use of birth control methods. (Only a slightly smaller number, 81%, of the Catholic youngsters agreed.)

—70% approve of legalized abortions (42% of the Catholics said "yes").

In other answers, 90% said they would move into a racially integrated neighborhood; only 2% said "earning a lot of money" was most important to a career; 72% said they considered themselves members of an organized religion; 81% believe in the institution of marriage.

Only one per cent said their parents never understood their problems, and an identical percentage said lines of communication with their parents are "never open."

MARQUIS CHILDS

David Packard Leaves Washington

figure. In the Eisenhower administration, they were eager to return as soon as possible to the little, old shop, which might be a multi-million-dollar corporation, back home.

Packard bore a superficial resemblance to the type. He found the processes of government irksome, often maddening, and he would speak sometimes nostalgically of going back to his little shop in California which happened to be a $400 million enterprise.

But with determination and great expertise, he dug into the Pentagon tangle. While he was often brought up short, he contributed substantially to the reductions in force and money that have been part of the Nixon program to transfer responsibility to nations that have been American satellites.

In a final press conference, this massive, reticent, unflappable man spoke some of the things long on his mind. Contrary to the howlers and screamers who constantly beat the drums for more and ever more lethal weapons, he said out of his far-reaching knowledge that the United States today has "an acceptable balance in our strategic capability."

Then he added:

"The Soviets are continuing to build up their offensive forces at a very rapid pace and unless we can achieve some satisfactory agreement, which would control the offensive forces as well as the defensive forces in our arms limitation talks, I think we may have a problem. I'm hopeful we can reach some satisfactory agreement here, and I believe that we have done enough work here in the government during the past three years to understand the problem well and I think that the President will have adequate and good guidance in deciding what should be done in the future on all strategic forces."

In response to a question about further economies, Packard replied that at least $1 billion could be saved by closing useless military bases. But this was difficult, if not impossible, because of political pressures from members of Congress whose districts would be hurt.

Standing at Packard's elbow was his chief, Secretary Melvin R. Laird. Laird interposed to say that in all fairness, it should be added that defense cuts had already affected more than 2,700,000 jobs and people felt, many in Congress, that the Defense Department had moved too rapidly. That, said the secretary blandly, is a constraint to further action at this time.

Whatever his private convictions, no one can fault Packard for a lack of loyalty either to Laird or to the administration. He expressed his confidence in President Nixon and the importance of his re-election to a second term.

When Packard was named to the Pentagon post, a lot was heard about the military-industrial complex. His firm — Hewlett, Packard — has about 30 per cent of its business, chiefly electronics, in defense contracts. He signed an agreement putting his 3,550,000 shares in Hewlett, Packard in trust with the stipulation that any increase in value go for education and charity.

During his tenure, the stock had split two for one and his current holding is 7,100,300 shares. This represented an accretion in value of $18,815,000, which Packard and his wife are currently giving to a variety of recipients. Having begun with an initial investment of $600, it is an old-fashioned success story, and government service is a postscript to that success.

High Court: Guilty Plea Not Invalidated By Withdrawal Symptoms

By The Associated Press
Just because a narcotics addict is experiencing some withdrawal symptoms at the time does not invalidate his guilty plea to a criminal charge if the record otherwise indicates that the plea was voluntary and entered intelligently and understandingly, the State Supreme Court held Thursday.

James P. Stapleton, 29, who was sentenced in Grand Island last March to two years imprisonment for possession of heroin, appealed to the Supreme Court, contending he was a narcotics addict who had received Methadone for only a few nights while in jail and was incapable of intelligently and understandingly entering a plea of guilty.

The Supreme Court said the record contained nothing to sustain Stapleton's claim that his guilty plea was invalid. The record, in fact, shows "a sincere effort on the part of the district judge and the county attorney to give the defendant the benefit of every right that he had," the court said.

In another appeal, the Supreme Court reversed the Buffalo County District Court, which had dismissed a wrongful death action brought by Lawrence F. Weber, administrator of the estate of Marie E. Hickman, against the Southwest Nebraska Dairy Suppliers, Inc., and Milford Johnson, driver of a truck owned by the corporation.

The suit grew out of a collision near Elm Creek July 23, 1969, between a pickup truck owned by Marie E. Hickman and her husband, Robert, and the truck driven by Johnson. Both Hickmans were in the pickup, which was being driven at the time by Mrs. Audrey Grassmeyer, a family friend.

The Buffalo County District Court dismissed the suit on grounds the plaintiff's vehicle was negligent as a matter of law and the negligence was imputed to Mr. and Mrs. Hickman. The Supreme Court held the case raised questions which a jury needed to decide, and sent the case back for a new trial.

In other opinions Thursday, the court:
—Affirmed the Madison County District Court in a real estate mortgage foreclosure case. The lower court had found that Harold G. and Dorothy Thompson were indebted to the J. I. Case Credit Corp. for $4,801 plus interest, and that the corporation was entitled to a degree of foreclosure on property securing the indebtedness. The Thompsons unsuccessfully contended the statute of limitations made the suit invalid.

—Upheld the Saline County District Court in admitting to probate the will of Agnes V. Pantier, who died in 1967. Robert Wallace Flint, a son of a deceased daughter, sought to vacate the decree admitting the will and a codicil to probate. Flint alleged undue influence had been applied to the deceased by a surviving son, Byron D. Pantier.

—Affirmed the Antelope County District Court in awarding a judgment to Kirby Bailey in a suit against Leon McCoy to wind up the affairs of a partnership formed to render accounting and income tax service at Neligh. The district court held that Bailey was entitled to a judgment for $3,062, but the Supreme Court raised this figure to $3,089.

"Carnal Knowledge" is a feast of a film. It is a very funny and very cruel and very sad film. Mike Nichols uses the screen as it has rarely been used heretofore. # Police To Use Greater Efficiency In Focusing On Drinking Drivers

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

If you celebrate New Year's Eve a little more than you should, don't get behind the wheel of your car.

While scrupulously avoiding the word "crackdown" regarding the drinking driver, Lincoln Police say they will officially start focusing on the problem with "greater efficiency."

The new thrust at stopping the drunk driver is part of the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Program (LASAP), funded by a $1.6 million federal grant.

Among other things, the grant provided for special training of seven police officers and their salaries for replacements in the general-officer ranks.

Two Instruments

The grant also equipped the department with two gas chromatographs — laboratory-type instruments capable of determining the alcohol content in a person's body using as a sample of blood, urine or breath for analysis.

Assistant Police Chief Willis Manchester said the seven-man alcohol squad will be strategically deployed in problem areas New Year's Eve and will give their full attention to finding and apprehending drunk drivers.

However, Manchester said drunk driving cases won't be overlooked by regular officers, who will be assisted by the alcohol squad as needed.

Because of their special training and the chromatographs, the alcohol squad can make a determination of the alcohol content of a suspect driver in a very short time.

Few Minutes

If the suspect driver agrees to a urine or breath test at police headquarters, the sample can be analyzed in a very few minutes on the chromatograph.

Where formerly blood samples for testing were taken at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center, the department will have a registered nurse on duty to take the sample.

Members of the alcohol squad and their operation of the chromatograph have been certified by the State Health Department.

"This means," Manchester said, "we can test the suspect driver in a very short time and get our officers back on the street."

Formerly, he said, as much as an hour and a half of an officer's time was tied up in a drunk-driving arrest.

Old Process By-Passed

As of Jan. 1, the police department's chromatograph will make the official analysis and by-pass the former time-consuming process of sending body fluid samples to approved laboratories for later analysis.

In addition to the more sophisticated procedures and equipment in dealing with the drunk driving, the new laws enacted by the 1971 Legislature enhances the effectiveness of law enforcement officers in their effort to keep the drinking driver off the street.

A driver need no longer be a falling-down drunk before becoming subject to prosecution.

And if a driver refuses to submit to an alcohol test, he can be prosecuted in the court on the state's implied consent law, which formerly was administered by the State Motor Vehicle Dept.

"For conviction on driving while the blood-alcohol content is .10% or more," says City Prosecutor Jerry Nelson, "all that is needed is a valid test."

Law To Be Used

"Most of the drinking drivers will be prosecuted under this law," he said.

"But if there are other circumstances in the case to warrant the filing of a drunk-driving charge," he said, "this type of prosecution will be initiated."

Nelson said the maximum penalty for drunk-driving, driving in excess of .10% alcohol content is up to three months in jail or a fine up to $100, or both, and suspension of driving privileges for six months.

Second-offense convictions for drunk-driving or for driving with .10% alcohol content carries a penalty of five days to three months in jail or a $300 fine, or both, and suspension of driving privileges for one year.

Third offense is a felony, carrying the possible penalty of imprisonment in the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Missouri Wins Big 8 Cage Title

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Kansas City, Mo. — Quick-striking Missouri rolled past Kansas State, 67-58, here Thursday night to win its third Big Eight pre-season basketball tournament since the meet's inception in 1946.

The Tigers of coach Norm Stewart, who last won the tourney in 1954 when Stewart was a junior at Mizzou, rolled to an early lead and then erupted at the end to down the Wildcats, who were seeking their eighth title.

The win pushed MU to a 10-1 record while the loss dropped the Wildcats of coach Jack Hartman to 6-6.

After scoring 12 unanswered points to snap a 3-3 deadlock and forge into a 15-3 advantage, the Tigers carved a 28-22 halftime cushion before a roaring, screaming throng of 10,500 at Municipal Auditorium.

It was the third straight sellout in as many nights as the tourney attracted 48,177.

Although the final nine-point margin was the largest Mizzou lead of the second half the Wildcats were within three points on several occasions only to have a key basket by Mike Jeffries or John Brown push MU to five-point advantages.

But the vital statistic that provided Missouri with the title was its 21 of 42 field goal performances combined with 25 of 33 free throw points.

In comparison, the Wildcats connected on just 8 of 18 foul line opportunities, KSU had outscored the Tigers from the field with 25 field goals in 57 attempts for a respectable 43.9 shooting percentage.

While the Wildcats landed only 6-10 junior center Steve Mitchell in double figured (18), Missouri placed four men in twin digits.

Al Eberhard scored 21 points, while John Brown pulled down 10 rebounds in addition to his 18 points. Jeffries and senior guard Greg Flaker each tallied 10 points.

The raggedness of the first half was reflected in 13 turnovers by K-State and Missouri's 12 bobbles. The Wildcats connected on just 33.3 per cent of its shots while Missouri scored on only 39.1 per cent.

The final time the Wildcats pulled within three points (59-56 with 3:25 remaining), Brown

Ole Miss Captures Peach Bowl

Atlanta (UPI) — Sophomore quarterbacks Norris Weese and Kenny Lyons piloted Mississippi to a 41-18 frolic over Georgia Tech Thursday night in the rain and mud of the Peach Bowl.

Mississippi rolled to five touchdowns and a field goal in the first half before Georgia Tech could get its offense untracked.

Tailback Rob Healy scored three touchdowns for the yellow jackets, one in each of the final three quarters, but the game was out of control by that time.

Georgia Tech was behind 10-0 before its offensive team ever had the ball and was unable to make a first down in the first quarter — played in a steady rain.

The bad weather that has plagued the Peach Bowl during its four year history continued. A pounding rain began two hours before the start of the game and the field was a slimy mess of puddles and mud holes by the kickoff.

Weese scored the first touchdown on a one-yard run, ending a 56-yard drive. Tech then fumbled the kickoff and Weese directed the Rebels 33 yards to the seven before Cloyce Hinton kicked a 23-yard field goal.

Jimmy Porter then scored touchdowns on runs of 10 and two yards, Kenny Lyons fired a 15-yard scoring pass to Leon Felts, and Weese passed 11 yards to Riley Myers to run the score to 38-0.

In the fourth quarter Hinton hit a 30-yard field goal.

Tailback Greg Ainsworth was the workhorse for Mississippi, carrying the ball 27 times for 118 yards, most of it coming in the second half when Mississippi was trying to run out the clock.

Before the game Mississippi coach Billy Kinnard had said he did not intend to use Lyons, who had missed the last half of the season after suffering a shoulder separation.

But with the Rebels leading 17-0 early in the second quarter, Lyons came in and guided Mississippi to two more fast touchdowns.

Weese was named the game's outstanding offensive player and linebacker Crowell Armstrong was named the outstanding defensive player.

Both Coaches Say Defense The Key

Miami, Fla. — Nebraska's Bob Devaney and Alabama's Bear Bryant, while admitting it's most difficult to predict whether their Orange Bowl contest Saturday night will be a high scoring one or not, agree that they both look for a defensive affair.

"No one has scored much on them," Bryant said of Nebraska Thursday, "And I don't think anybody's going to score a whole lot on us. I said a whole lot."

Devaney pointed out that Alabama was averaging "about 32 points a game and we're averaging 38 or 39. This would indicate a high scoring game, but Alabama has a better defense than Oklahoma did and we think we've got a good defense.

"The game could break wide open for both teams or it could break wide open for one team, but I look for the defenses to play a big part."

Most writers attending a Wednesday evening press conference with Huskers Jeff Kinney, Johnny Rodgers and Larry Jacobson noticed an air of confidence among the trio. Devaney was asked about this Thursday.

"In a game like this, you don't worry about over-confidence they show is merely confidence in themselves and sounded confident. If you're playing a team where you're heavily favored, then over-confidence could be a problem.

"But I know our players respect Alabama and the confidence they show is merely confidence in themselves and in their teammates and I think that's good. I want them to feel confident."

On the subject of being favored Bryant said his reaction to having his Crimson Tide made a six-point underdog was, break his body and cut on a dime, as the old saying goes," says Bill Oliver, Alabama's defensive backfield coach. "And he has the insight to see where to go. He just has fantastic ability."

Oliver, whose defensive backs will have the responsibility of stopping Rodgers as a pass receiver says he can see why Rodgers is used as a kick returner and a running back as well as a receiver.

"You have to use your horse. Feed him and let him feed you."

best in the nation — and they say the constant pressure has taught them to live with tension.

"We've had to learn to live with pressure," says Rodgers. "But on the day of the game I think I'll get pretty shook up. It's built up all this year."

Rodgers says he plans to spend his day Saturday like every other football fan, watching the afternoon bowl games on television.

"I think I'll try to keep my mind occupied," he says. But what will keep his mind occupied is the kind of job he will do Saturday night.

The team scoring leader, at a slight 171 pounds, says he worries about things he "personally" has to do. Thinks like the moment when he is back to receive a punt, looks up to spot the ball, looks down to see how his blocking is going, and then looking back up and reaching for the ball.

"If I get that first block, then I know we have a return going," says the Omaha native who has averaged 16 yards per punt return, 24 for each kickoff return, and seven yards running counterplays and sweeps from his slotback position.

"If it turns out that we need him to win the game, we won't hesitate to use him," Devaney said. This would mean Humm would use up one game's eligibility in only one game.

town talk

The world is full of surprises, good — and bad. Personally we like the happy surprise — such as the one that happened on Christmas Eve at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Woodruff. First we should tell you that Mrs. Woodruff Batten of Colorado Springs, Colo., came a bit ahead of Christmas Eve to spend the holidays with her parents. But the great surprise came while Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff, their daughter, Mrs. Batten — and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Woodruff were following the family Christmas Eve tradition and having oyster stew — all seated around the kitchen table.

Then the doorbell rang — and in walked Sgt. Morgan Batten (Trip) who had arrived unannounced from his base at Darmstadt, Germany.

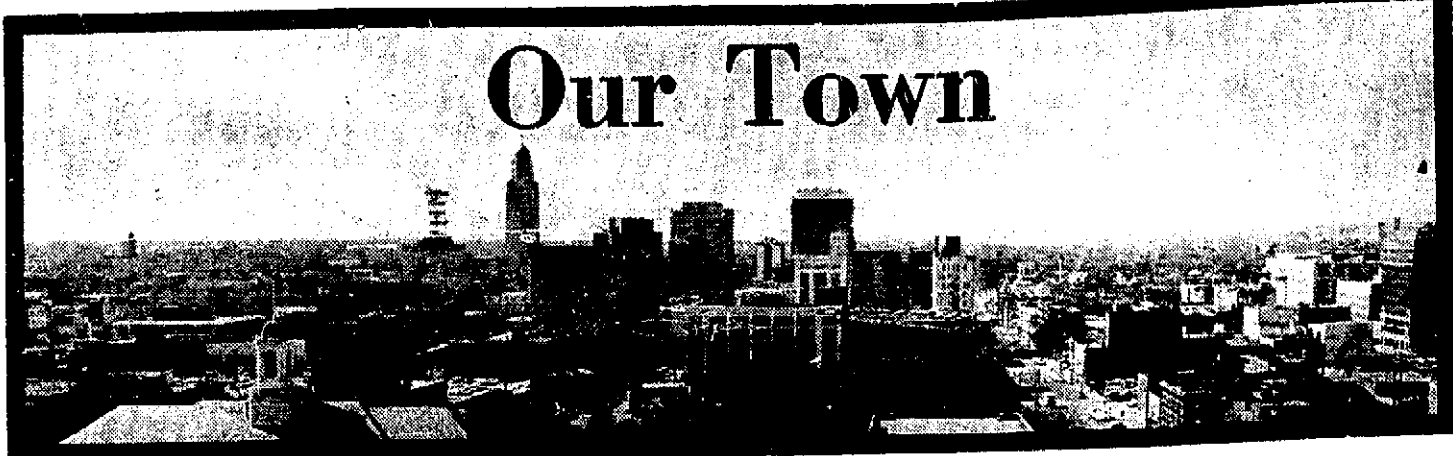

Nothing more was needed to ensure a happy Christmas for the Woodruff family. Sgt. Batten leaves at the far side of this weekend to return to Germany.

Tonight, of course, is New Year's Eve — and another 'of course' has to do with the Cotillion Club and its traditional New Year's Eve party.

It is to be a dinner dance, naturally, and will be held at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel where the ballrooms will be decorated in the principal theme for the year 1972. There will be donkeys, elephants, flags, red, white and blue bunting and pictures of candidates.

The party planners include members of a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoppe, Jr., chairman; Mr. and Mrs. David Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Endacott, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gibbs and Mr. and Mrs. Congdon Paulson.

Included on the guest list for the party are Mr. and Mrs. William Wenke of Santa Ana, Calif.; Dr. John Thompson of Iowa City, Iowa; Mrs. Helen McGhee of Mobile, Ala.; Mrs. Thomas Seymour and Tom Moll, both of Denver; Dr. and Mrs. William Gondring, Mr. and Mrs. George Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stuckey, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Ball and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sack — all of Lincoln.

Footlights & Canvas

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

The coming of the New Year somehow always gives one food for thought. Generally these thoughts, as the departing year passes in review, stray from retrospection to an introspective speculation of what the forthcoming year may bring.

In the area of the arts, 1971 has been full-bodied. In almost every area there have been many memorable moments. But, this is not the time to dwell on the past. Now, the prospects for the new year, 1972, are looming up on the horizon as another year to remember.

One of the outstanding contributions to the community in 1972 will be the opening of the new Lincoln Community Playhouse in February. It has been a long haul for the Playhouse, which has done such fine productions under trying circumstances.

The Nebraska Art Association is planning tours of Europe for the fall of the new year. The trips will concentrate on art in other lands. It sounds like a marvelous opportunity for an enriching vacation.

We can hardly fail to mention that 1972 will also see a production of the controversial tribal love rock musical "Hair" at Pershing

Auditorium on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 and 2. We cannot promise that everyone who pays admission will enjoy the show. Yet, we feel that this is an important step in the City of Lincoln — that people are entitled to their own selectivity. It will be interesting to hear how ticket sales progress.

The educational television station also will be moving into its new quarters in the first few months of 1972. Channel 12 will give considerable warmth to those cold evenings that keep people at home.

The month of January is off to a rather slow start. Perhaps this is for the best since a couple of weeks of pure rest is usually welcome following the rush of the holidays. Toward the middle of the month, however, the ball starts rolling. TAFY will present another children's program at Lincoln Southeast High entitled, "Color Combo" on Jan. 12-14.

The Community Playhouse has planned its farewell show at the present facilities for Jan. 14 and 15 in a fun review entitled, "One More Time".

That is just a taste of what is to come. We hope you will continue to join us in the new year, and that 1972 brings health and happiness to you all.

Abby: no one turned away from synagog

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me why non-Jews are not allowed to visit Jewish synagogues? Don't tell me this is not true because I was personally turned away.

A GENTILE

DEAR GENTILE: According to Rabbi Bernard S. Raskas, Temple of Aaron, St. Paul, Minn., never is anyone asked upon entering a synagogue whether he is Jewish.

During the High Holy Days, (three days a year) all synagogues are crowded with congregation members and there are no extra seats available. In this kind of situation, as in an overcrowded theater, concert hall, etc., where there is simply no room, understanding and cooperation is expected.

Outside of these rare instances, all branches of Judaism cordially welcome non-Jewish visitors.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F. D.

J.: Beware of statistics! They can make a case for almost any point one wants to prove — depending upon a variety of factors. For instance: Statistics showed that Switzerland ranked Number One in the highest increase of unemployed over the last year.

Those statistics would indicate that the glorious little country which so many regard as the ideal place to live has suffered a tremendous economic blow. The FACT IS: In 1970 there were 34 jobless men in Switzerland, and in 1971 the unemployment figure rose to a grand total of 51! Ha!

Alabama Wishbone Considerably Different From Sooners' T

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Coaches Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma and Ralph Jordan of Auburn agreed Thursday that the Wishbone offense Alabama used to devastate Auburn bears little similarity to the way Oklahoma runs it.

"They are similar in that they both line up in a full house backfield," said Jordan, whose Tigers were whipped 31-7 by an Alabama team that held the ball almost 75 percent of the time in the Dec. 5 game.

"But Alabama used more split men and when the ball was snapped there was very little similarity in what they did and what we've seen Oklahoma do in the films we've seen," said Jordan.

Since that defeat to Alabama, there has been much speculation on how well Auburn could stop the Sooner Wishbone, which led the nation in total offense, in the Sugar Bowl game Saturday.

"I don't know whether we didn't play well or Alabama didn't let us play well," said Jordan. "Everything seemed to work their way."

"If anybody is selling Alabama short I suggest they change their thinking," added the Auburn coach.

Jordan appeared with Oklahoma's Fairbanks at a joint news conference Thursday.

"Even though both teams (Alabama and Oklahoma) line up in a Wishbone formation, we were not running the same offense at all," said Fairbanks.

"Alabama has stronger people up front and uses an assaulting type running game. We are not an assaulting team. Our offense is based on speed and finesse."

Fairbanks added that he doubts Oklahoma can control the ball against Auburn like Alabama did. "I wish we could," he said, "because that may be the best way to defend them. Their offensive unit has tremendous striking power. They're never out of it because they can score so quickly."

The Sooner coach observed that "Auburn is a whole lot better defensive team than what most people think they are."

"They make the big plays," he said. "Their speed and quickness gives them the ability to force mistakes. Their basic system of defense is a sound scheme to play against our offense."

Jordan also stuck up for the Auburn defense, which yielded an average of 271 yards a game. "I don't think our defense was all that bad against Alabama," said Jordan. "Remember that we were behind only 14-7 going into the fourth quarter although Alabama had kept the ball most of the time."

"We did make a few tackles," Jordan said. With a trace of a smile, he added: "I think we even stopped Johnny Musso one time for no gain."

But both coaches agreed that a high scoring game is likely.

"I don't feel we can stop Oklahoma cold," said Jordan. "For Auburn to win, we'll have to score more than two or three times."

Stanford 'Positive Thinking' May Prove Giant Killer

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — Stanford will have to run as well as pass to upset Michigan in Saturday's 58th Rose Bowl game, says the Stanford Coach, John Ralston.

How will the pass-minded Indians run against the Michigan Wolverines, a team nobody ran effectively against in the past season?

"The power of positive thinking," answers Ralston.

And a sportswriter from the Midwest asked jokingly, "How much will positive thinking play?"

"Quite a bit," says Ralston, seriously. "If you don't believe you can, you never will."

Stanford, the Pacific-8 champion with an 8-3 record, upset Ohio State 27-17 in the last Rose Bowl and now meets another undefeated Big Ten giant in 11-0 Michigan.

"Wed like to think we can do it again," Ralston said.

Michigan is a 12½-point favorite in this game.

Basically, Stanford wants

Michigan to pass the football and Michigan wants Stanford to run.

The Indians, says Ralston, won't beat Michigan unless they "establish a balance of run and pass. We hope to run."

To constantly throw into a Michigan defense set against the pass would be disastrous — for Stanford, Ralston adds.

Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan says the Wolverines haven't met a team all season as proficient with the forward pass as Stanford.

"We've met better running teams but not better passing teams," Schembechler said.

"They'll hit passes. There's no way we can stop that. We've just got to stop them from hitting the big play."

Michigan will win, he said, "If we stop their passing game and do reasonably well against the run. If we sell out everything to stop the pass, they'll run on us. We've got to back off a little bit and stop the pass and still stop the run."

Ralston says Stanford must destroy Michigan's ball-control attack built mainly on the running of tailback Billy Taylor.

"If our defense has to play 75 percent of the time," he says, "we'll get beat. I hope to see us cut down their running and force more passing."

Both coaches have avoided statements likely to fire up the opponent.

When questions led Ralston to a critique of Michigan's seldom-used passing offense, he commented:

"They can pass. When they throw the football, they do it very, very well."

Schembechler continues to be concerned with the condition of the Rose Bowl's natural turf, and he's irritated that the surface was not protected from recent heavy rains. No tarp was available.

Game officials planned to use helicopters and air blowers if necessary in an effort to dry out the field but Schembechler feels it will be soft anyway.

Clear skies are forecast.

A soft field and dry weather benefits Stanford's passing attack and hinders Michigan's running game, Schembechler said.

UNO Finishes Seventh, 88-77

Chico, Calif. (UPI) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha, led by John Robish and Calvin Forrest with 24 each, took seventh place in the Chicago Holiday Tournament Thursday night with an 88-77 victory over Southwest Minnesota.

Colorado Challenges Houston

Houston (AP) — Seventh-ranked Colorado and 15th-ranked Houston cranked up potent triple-option offenses in the 13th annual Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in the Astrodome Friday night with both teams aiming to increase their national prestige.

Colorado, which overcame losses to defending national champion Nebraska and Oklahoma for a 9-2 season record, operates Coach Eddie Crowder's option offense developed by Head Coach Bill Yeoman.

Two of the nation's leading rushers provide the main thrust of each team's offense — sophomore sensation Charley Davis of Colorado and senior Robert Newhouse for the Cougars.

Newhouse was the nation's second leading rusher this season with 1,757 yards, trailing only Cornell's Ed Marinaro who had 1,881. Only four ball carriers have rushed for more than 1,700 yards in the history of college football.

Newhouse averaged 159.7 yards a game this season and rushed over 100 yards 16 times during his career, including 10 of Houston's 11 games this season. He rushed for 99 yards on the other occasion.

Davis, a sophomore from West Columbia, Tex., didn't take long to get into the Colorado record books. He rushed 1,386 yards to become Colorado's top rusher ever. He had a 342-yard performance against Oklahoma State.

The outspoken Buffaloes see an Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl victory as a springboard to better national prominence next season possibly even the national championship, for the sophomore dominated team.

The Cougars, who have finished in the top 20 for the past six years, also would like to cap a rebuilding year with a victory to impress the schoolboy recruits that have been at daily workouts.

Quarterback Ken Johnson will direct the Buffaloes, completing an exciting season for a sophomore. He directed Colorado to an upset of Louisiana State in his first game as a starter.

Two games later he scored two touchdowns to key another upset over Ohio State, ranked No. 5 in the nation at the time. Johnson completed the season with 1,475 yards in total offense, third best in Colorado history.

Gary "Moon" Mullins, often criticized as being too slow, near-sighted and week-armed, will quarterback the Cougars in his final college game.

Mullins owns all of Houston's passing and total offense records, including 37 career touchdown passes.

"All he does is win," says Yeoman in sizing up Mullins.

Thone Wager? Beef Vs. Catfish

Nebraska's 1st District Congressman is betting T-bone steaks against catfish that the University of Nebraska football team will win its Orange Bowl game with Alabama University.

Rep. Charles Thone's Lincoln office announced Thursday that the GOP congressman is wagering 50 Nebraska T-bone steaks against 50 Alabama catfish that the Huskers will win.

Thone, whose District includes the university campus, made the wager with Alabama Rep. Walter Flowers, whose District includes the Alabama campus at Tuscaloosa.

If the Nebraska congressman wins, the catfish will go to the Nebraska Cancer Society. The steaks would go to a charity yet undesignated by Flowers.

Thone plans to be in Miami for the game New Year's evening.

Nixon's Economic Opportunity Veto Effects Being Explained By NACD

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The effects of President Nixon's Dec. 9 veto of the economic opportunity act of 1971 will be explained to communities as part of the strategy adopted by the National Association for Community Development (NACD) regional steering committee.

The act affects existing OEO-funded programs and was one of the subjects discussed at an emergency meeting of the NACD in Kansas City, Kan.

Mrs. Lana Balka, director of Lincoln Action Program (LAP), and Mrs. Joan Wooten, vice-chairman of LAP's board, were among the 35 representatives of community action programs and OEO offices in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, who attended Wednesday's meeting.

Mrs. Balka reported that other parts of the strategy include a thorough orientation of the problem for every city action program board prior to January 14, resulting in a position statement to be sent to the President and congressmen.

Letter-Writing

She added that NACD is also encouraging an active letter-writing campaign to initiate or continue communication with

He's Training for the Future. Your carrier boy is forming habits now that will be important in later life. Your suggestions on ways he can improve will be appreciated.

Mrs. Balka related that NACD is strongly in favor of continuing "broad-based community involvement." It is this community involvement which makes LAP unique, she continued, and the loss of OEO funds "jeopardize" the effectiveness of the program.

Mrs. Wooten feels that lower income persons have had more courage to speak out in community affairs through LAP's programs. She said that they will lose their "togetherness" and their "voice will no longer be heard," without LAP's programs.

A national meeting of the NACD is scheduled for January 17 to coincide with the opening of the new congressional session. Following that meeting, LAP will host the next meeting of the regional steering group to take further action.

Mrs. Balka explained that many community programs operating under LAP would be affected by this cut in OEO funds. Such programs include Legal Services, Family Planning, Neighborhood Youth Corps, Senior Citizens and Head Start.

OEO Funds Used

She also mentioned that the state ombudsman and the state technical assistance office are administered through OEO funds.

Proposed Payroll Tax Draws Stiff Opposition

During a panel discussion Thursday of Nebraska LB978, State Senator Jerome Warner received a petition signed by opponents of the bill.

The Legislation's purpose is to submit to the voters in 1972 a constitutional amendment enabling first class cities to levy payroll taxes on non-residents working inside the cities.

The petition was presented to Warner by Charles R. Kulms, Valparaiso, a panel member.

Attorney Dennis Burchard said he feels the legislation is unconstitutional because it violates the 14th amendment, specifically the equal protection clause.

Kulms said he feels the bill is unconstitutional because it is "taxation without representation."

Warner described the bill as a "politician's cream." He said any politician would like to have a tax paid by persons other than his constituents.

The panel agreed that, if the 45 persons attending the discussion were truly against such legislation, now was the time to stop it.

Warner said, "The public hearing was held during the 1971 session — at this point the most effective thing to do would be to contact your senators."

Because more than 60% of Nebraska's residents live in Lincoln and Omaha, Warner said, it would be wise to stop the bill before it reaches a statewide vote.

He pointed out that 20 senators in opposition to the bill would keep it off the ballot.

The lone proponent of the bill seated on the panel was Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln.

He said it is unfair that city residents should pay for services and facilities that are used often by rural communities.

Barnett, a member of the Legislature's Committee on Constitutional Revision, voted in April to advance the bill from the committee to the general file.

Warner said, "The public hearing was held during the 1971 session — at this point the most effective thing to do would be to contact your senators."

President Nixon Won't Be Alone On GOP Ballot

The Republican presidential ballot in Nebraska's primary this spring will probably list more names than just President Nixon's, Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann said Thursday.

Beermann said he is currently planning to list at least Ohio's GOP Congressman John Ashbrook now that Ashbrook has declared his intention to file for the New Hampshire and Florida primaries.

GOP Congressman Paul McCloskey of California will also be listed on the ballot if he enters any primaries, Beermann added.

The tentative Democratic ballot now lists Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine, George McGovern of South Dakota, Henry Jackson of Washington and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, New York Mayor John Lindsay and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

Possible additions. Beermann said would include Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Indiana Sen. Vance Hartke and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Battle for Supremacy

COLOR

Alabama's Bear Bryant Versus Nebraska's Bob Devaney

By HAL BROWN

Bob Devaney and Paul Bryant know a little about what it's like to be down, but "down" for the two coaches, who will direct their Nebraska and Alabama teams against each other in this year's Orange Bowl, isn't as far down as it is for most coaches.

The farthest down Devaney has been in his 15 years as a head coach was 4-3-3 in his first year at Wyoming and the farthest down he's been at Nebraska was two 6-4 seasons in 1967 and 1968.

Bryant's only losing season in 27 years as a head coach was a 1-9 mark in his first year at Texas A&M and the farthest down he's been at Alabama was two 6-5 years, 1969 and 1970.

But to their fans, who had become accustomed to 9-2s and 10-1s, being 6-5 and 6-4 meant the same kind of nasty letters from alumni and fans that normally are reserved for those 1-9 and 2-8 coaches.

Bryant was so disheartened by his "bad" seasons that he offered to quit at Alabama, but he pointed out this winter, "I want to thank Dr. (David) Matthews (Alabama president) and the Board of Trustees for not letting me quit when I wanted to."

Turn Around

But both Devaney and Bryant knew how to turn skidding (for them) programs around. After all, both had turned skidding programs of other coaches around, hadn't they?

After that opening 4-3-3 year at Wyoming, Devaney produced an 8-3 mark for the Cowboys the following year.

When he came to Nebraska, Husker fans had suffered through a 3-6-1 year and hadn't had a winning team to cheer for since 1955.

Devaney gave them a winning team immediately with a 9-2 mark, including a 36-34 victory over Miami in the Gotham Bowl.

But while Devaney gave Nebraska fans a winner, it was to cost them money — following the Huskers to eight bowls in 10 years.

As Successful

As successful as Devaney was at turning programs around, Bryant was equally as successful.

He started in 1945 at Maryland.

—Maryland was 1-7-1 the year before Bryant appeared on the scene and 6-2-1 the year he was there;

—Kentucky had three straight miserable seasons before Bryant took over in 1946, and eight straight winning seasons followed, opening at 7-3;

—After that 1-9 opening year at Texas A&M in 1954, the Aggies went 7-2-1 in 1955 and were unbeaten and ranked fifth nationally in 1956;

—In the three years before alumnus Bryant arrived back at Alabama, the Crimson Tide was 0-10, 2-7-1 and 2-7-1. In his first year, they were 5-4-1, then 7-2-2.

But as everyone, who's been in college football for more than a few days knows, every program has those "down" cycles and Devaney's two 6-4 years may have partially been caused by Alabama.

The two 6-4 years came on the heels of two straight bowl losses to very small, but very quick Alabama teams.

"We decided after those losses to Alabama that maybe we ought to get some smaller players," Devaney has said with tongue partly in cheek. "We recruited smaller ones, but they also were slow."

Losing String

Just when some of the less patient Husker fans were saying coach Devaney may have passed his coaching prime, the Duke started them cheering again with the beginning of a long unbeaten string that now stands at 31 straight.

While Devaney thought briefly about the smaller, quicker players, it may have been a decision by Bryant to go for the bigger players that turned the Alabama program back onto an 11-0 season.

"After our loss to Colorado in the Liberty Bowl a couple of years ago," recalls Bryant, "We decided maybe we couldn't win any more with the little players."

"We discovered that we were getting hurt because some of the big guys others were recruiting also happened to be pretty quick."

An example of the change in attitude at Alabama is John Hannah, a 275-pound tackle.

Career Records

Their career coaching records stand at 210-66-16 for a percentage of .747 for Bryant; 125-23-6 for .805 for Devaney. At Alabama, Bryant has been 119-27-8 for .799; at Nebraska, Devaney is 90-18-1 for .761.

And since those seasons when they were supposed to be over the hill as coaches, Bryant is 11-0; Devaney 32-2-1.

Big Game Pits Nebraska Against Alabama—Again

By DON FORSYTHE

National championship games are something special — no matter how many of them you've been in.

The Orange Bowl is something special Saturday when unbeaten Alabama challenges Nebraska for the title the Cornhuskers claimed in Miami a year ago with a 17-12 win over LSU.

It's the third straight national championship game in as many trips to Miami for Nebraska. But this one is different.

It's been a national championship game since Nov. 27 when Alabama thrashed unbeaten Auburn, 31-7, and took over the No. 2 spot in the college football polls.

Two days earlier Nebraska, a front runner in the polls all season, had defeated Oklahoma, 35-31, in its first No. 1-No. 2 showdown of the season.

Gamble Won

That made it official. The Orange Bowl, which had gambled in inviting Alabama and Nebraska, had the college equivalent of the Super Bowl.

The big buildup wasn't present in Nebraska's 1966 and 1971 Orange Bowl games. The Cornhuskers entered each of their last Miami games ranked No. 3.

Nobody knew last year's Orange Bowl game was a national championship affair until moments before kickoff, when word of Stanford's upset of unbeaten Ohio State sent a buzz through the stadium. The Buckeyes had been No. 2. Earlier, Notre Dame had upset No. 1 Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

It was the same situation in 1966

when Nebraska and Alabama first met in a bowl game.

LSU's upset of Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl and UCLA's 14-12 surprise of No. 1 Michigan State in the Rose Bowl put unbeaten Nebraska (10-0) and Alabama (8-1-1) in the championship game. Opportunistic Alabama won that one, 39-28, by striking with aggressive, daring plays against the bigger Cornhuskers to roll up a 24-7 halftime advantage Nebraska couldn't overcome.

Matched Again

Now Alabama and Nebraska are matched again — the first time the nation's top two teams, both unbeaten and untied, have been paired in a bowl game since Bud Wilkinson's Oklahoma team took a 20-6 win over Maryland, coached by Jim Tatum, in the 1956 Orange Bowl.

Odds makers have established Nebraska, with its brilliantly balanced offense and its awesome defense, as a one-touchdown favorite over Alabama.

Tickets in the 75,000-seat stadium have been going at premium prices for two weeks. Those who can't get in will watch on NBC-TV. The advance buildup will likely give the game the biggest TV audience a college game has ever had.

The Thanksgiving Day Nebraska-Oklahoma game, seen in 13.6 million homes, had the biggest college regular season game TV audience in history.

The buildup for that one started early. Those in the immediate Big Eight family had projected a 1971 Oklahoma-Nebraska championship game almost from the time of the final gun in Nebraska's 28-21 win over the Sooners in 1970. It was to be strictly a two-team race for Big Eight honors . . . and it was.

Championship Game

And when Oklahoma thundered past Southern Cal, Texas and Colorado on consecutive weekends in October the Thanksgiving Day game became a national championship game as well as a Big Eight championship game.

The Cornhuskers survived and found themselves facing another big one.

But coach Bob Devaney, seeking his first win over Alabama's Bear Bryant in three meetings, has perhaps his finest array of talent in 10 seasons at Nebraska.

"To this point," Devaney hedges, "this is as good a team as we've had."

It would be hard to argue that point even if the Cornhuskers should be upset by Alabama.

Nebraska hasn't lost in 31 games and has won 22 in succession since last year's 21-21 tie with Southern Cal. In a sense, the Cornhuskers have been playing for the national championship every week in 1971 after taking the

No. 1 spot with their opening 34-7 win over Oregon.

Bryant, who has coached three national champions in his 14 seasons at Alabama, hints that this year's Crimson Tide team may be his best.

"I think it could be one of our best teams . . . maybe our best. We have more good players than we've had in the last few years, maybe ever," he says.

Which one is best?

That's what will be determined Saturday night on the freshly-scrubbed and painted PolyTurf surface at the Orange Bowl Stadium.

It's the general impression that the Orange Bowl game will be defensively-oriented. Alabama enters the game with the Nation's No. 2 defense against scoring and Nebraska ranks No. 3.

"The defenses enter into this game more than they did in the Oklahoma game," says Devaney.

Low-scoring games tend to produce more pressure.

That's something Devaney isn't concerned about.

Won't Fold

"I don't think either Nebraska or Alabama is the type of team which will fold under pressure," he says.

Devaney considers this factor to be equal on both clubs.

"We're playing for the national championship and they're playing for the national championship," he says.

Past bowl history and season records become only incidental at that point.

National Titles, Awards Ride on New Year's Game

By MARK GORDON

National football titles can be won and lost . . . in groups.

In capturing the Associated Press national crown last season, Nebraska's football team also annexed the U.S. football writers' Grantland Rice award and the United Savings-Helms Athletic Foundation championship.

This season, coach Bob Devaney's Huskers have earned the United Press International national title for a 12-0 regular season. But three presumably earn the AP title with a triumph.

—The Grantland Rice award, given by the Football Writers Association of America.

While this year's squad concentrated on each game on an individual basis, the national spotlight pressures subconsciously affected them.

Keep Rank

"When we began the season, we knew we were Number One," says I-back Jeff Kinney of McCook. "Now we have to keep that ranking through and after Jan. 1."

Admitting the strains didn't really materialize until the season was several games old, the all-Big Eight back said the Oklahoma game (a 35-31 NU win) climaxed the drive to retain the title.

"I've had a hard time relaxing at the end of the season," Kinney says. "The buildup to the Oklahoma game was tremendous — we knew we had to win to keep our national title."

"No. I never really thought about the national title during the early part of the season, but I'm not surprised we're up there," Kinney adds. "But you always have doubts if you can repeat."

The leader of the offensive platoon, quarterback Jerry Tagge, says NU's status actually provided the Cornhuskers a psychological edge.

"I think it (national ranking) actually put more pressure on the other teams — they knew they had to get better prepared to meet us," he explains

Like Kinney, Tagge put the national awards in their perspective.

One at a Time

"The records and awards really didn't bother me this year," senior from Green Bay, Wis., adds. "They're nice to have after the season, but you have to play one game at a time."

Rich Glover, who earned several all-American laurels from his middle guard post, credited last year's national title with helping the defense

Crimson Tide and maintain the AP honor, it would mark the first repeat since Alabama prevailed in 1964 and 1965.

"If nobody would mention it, you really didn't think about it too much," says two-time all-Big Eight safety Bill Kosch, "We never really thought about the national titles — we were just interested in winning each game."

Fell Into Place

Kosch said last season, "things sort of fell into place," but noted that the Huskers earned their awards and breaks this season.

The Cornhuskers were third in the final AP regular season poll in 1970. But top-ranked Texas fell in the Cotton Bowl and Stanford upset second-ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska then triumphed in the final poll with an Orange Bowl win over LSU.

"I think we've thought about the honors, but it hasn't made our jobs any harder," Devaney says. "Sometimes, it's better to have our own people thinking about it, too."

The NU mentor claims that occasionally additional pressure helps teams operate more efficiently.

"I think it's helped this team," he adds.

And that "additional pressure" might just keep those national titles in Lincoln for another season.

other titles are riding on NU's New Year's night Orange Bowl match with Alabama.

They include:

—The MacArthur Bowl, presented by the National Football Foundation. Usually given before the post-season bowls, it will go to the Nebraska-Alabama victor.

—The Associated Press title. Alabama, also undefeated, could

"We knew we had a big job ahead of us to defend those titles," he says "But being a winning team helped put a lot of pride in us."

He adds: "It means a lot to us to win it again. Sure it put more pressure on us, but we have a chance to win it again and that's what we worked for."

Opponents Agree: Nebraska's Tough

Coach Floyd Gass, Oklahoma State: "They're awesome," he said of Nebraska. "They're stronger than last year. They deserve their No. 1 ranking. They have a good offense and a tremendous defense."

Gass

OSU linebacker Bubba Bain agreed. "Nebraska's defense is definitely the best we've faced this year. And they have the best offense we've seen this season. Nebraska doesn't have a grinding-type offense either. They kept coming up with the big play on second and third down with long yardage to go."

Coach Al Onofrio, Missouri:

"Nebraska's seniors play with the enthusiasm of sophomores and their sophomores and juniors play with the experience of seniors."

"Nebraska executes well up the middle. A team with real fine backs like theirs can find a crack. Good backs make an offensive line look better."

Onofrio

Crowder

Coach Eddie Crowder, Colorado: "Nebraska has a magnificent football team. Their balance is what beats you. They are excellent on both the run and the pass and they play fine defense."

Coach Johnny Majors, Iowa State: "Nebraska is the most complete team I've seen since I've been in the Big Eight. Not only is their defense fantastic, but on offense the quarterbacking is great, the fullbacks play exceptional ball and that (Johnny) Rodgers is something else."

Majors

He added Nebraska's defense is without a weakness. "That (Larry) Jacobson is as good a tackle as there is in the country. And (Rich) Glover too. They just engulf you."

Iowa State quarterback Dean Carlson agreed. "The only defense close to Nebraska in the country must be the Minnesota Vikings."

Coach Murray Warmath, Minnesota: "Nebraska has a fine team that is beautifully trained. And they execute their assignments to perfection."

Warmath

While reviewing his game with the Huskers, Warmath added, "I think the turning point came when the officials blew the whistle for the opening kickoff."

Coach Don Fambrough, Kansas: "Nebraska just doesn't have any weaknesses. It's almost impossible to prepare a team to face them."

Fambrough pointed to middle guard Rich Glover and slotback Johnny Rodgers as hurting his Jayhawks the most. "That Glover was in our backfield most of the day and Rodgers makes the big play. You just can't cover him on passes or running plays. He's just great."

Fambrough

Coach Chuck Mills, Utah State: "We came, we saw, but we were conquered." Then he repeated three times for emphasis. "That Nebraska is a helluva team."

Mills

"Nebraska does everything. They stopped us from doing what we wanted to do and we couldn't stop them from doing what they tried. You'd have thought we were following Devaney's game plan instead of our own."

All-Time Number of Records Shattered This Season

Never before in the history of football at Nebraska have so many records fallen

The Huskers broke 32 individual and team records while tying four this past season with the Orange Bowl to go. Included in this impressive list are ten Big Eight records, one of which was tied.

A total home attendance and average home attendance records were also set.

A total of 473,276 saw Nebraska play seven home games for an average of 67,610 per game. The old marks were 403,667 for six home games for an average of 67,277 last year.

And after the Orange Bowl the Huskers could break another two team and six individual Big Eight records and one team and one individual school record.

Team records still within reach are most touchdown passes for a season, most pass interceptions for a season and passing offense for a season.

Nebraska has 18 touchdown passes while the Big Eight record is 20 held by Missouri, 1969. The Huskers also have 27 pass interceptions with the Big Eight mark 30, set by NU last year.

The Huskers have passed for 2,152 yards this season, needing 89 to break the mark set last year.

Jerry Tagge needs one touchdown pass to tie Terry McMillan of Missouri for the Big Eight mark of 18 set in 1969. He only needs 24 yards to break Lynn Dickey's Big Eight record for total offense in a season.

The former Kansas State quarterback mark of 2,356 was established in 1969.

Tagge will need 213 yards in total offense to break Dickey's career record of 5,779 in the Big Eight.

Seven pass receptions will tie Johnny Rodgers with Eddie Hinton of Oklahoma for most passes caught in a season. Hinton grabbed 60 in 1968.

Rodgers also needs 96 yards in pass receptions to break Hinton's yards gained in a season.

The discrepancy between some Big Eight and school records results from Nebraska keeping some statistics for records while the Big Eight doesn't and vice versa.

Husker Teams Dominate With Unparalleled Power

When Missouri rolled through Big Eight play unbeaten in 1960 and spelled an end to 14 straight football championships for Oklahoma, the word started spreading that balance had returned to the Big Eight.

The experts saw little chance of any one team dominating the conference over a long period of time in the Oklahoma fashion.

They were right . . . for awhile. They hadn't heard about Bob Devaney.

Devaney, summoned from Wyoming to rebuild a once-proud Nebraska football program in 1962, quickly established the Cornhuskers as a perennial championship contender.

After a decade on the job his teams have won or shared seven Big Eight championships.

That's domination!

Unparalleled Power

And it's been a domination in an era of unparalleled power for the Big Eight Conference, now adjudged as one of, if not the strongest, football conferences in the land.

Acknowledging that departed Nebraska coach Bill Jennings had left some good talent behind, Devaney quickly proved he knew how to get the most out of it when he took charge of the Cornhuskers.

Nebraska had just won just 8 of 32 conference games in the five seasons Jennings coached.

But the Cornhuskers, sparked by an early-season 25-13 nonconference upset over Michigan, topped all conference foes but Missouri and Oklahoma in 1962 and finished third in the Big Eight standings.

It was just the start of something big. The Cornhuskers were undisputed champions and the next four seasons with 7-0, 6-1, 6-0 and 6-1 records.

Middle of Pack

Then, as the Big Eight tailenders started upgrading their programs, the balance caught up with the Cornhuskers. In 1967 and 1968 Devaney's teams finished in the middle of the pack with 3-4 records.

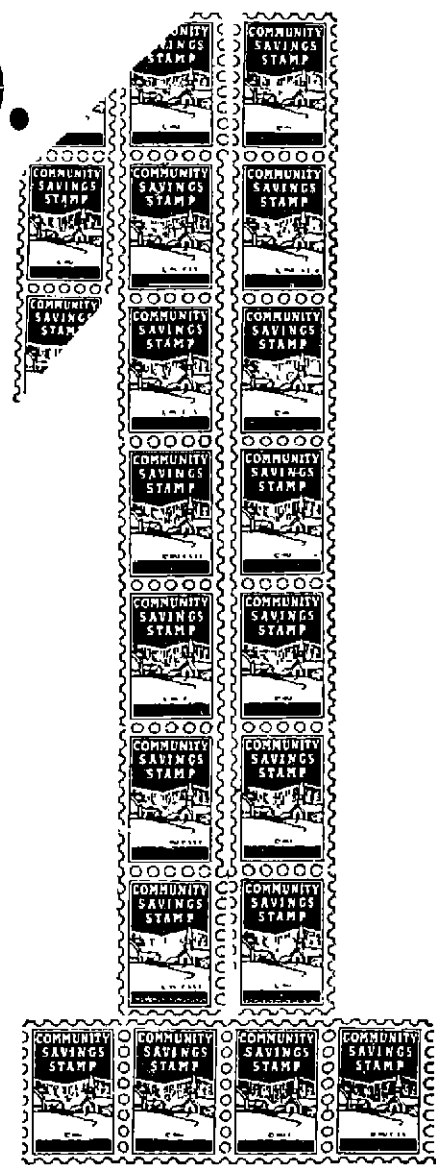

When the Cornhuskers lost their conference opener at Missouri (17-7) in 1969 a championship appeared remote. But Devaney's sophomore-sparked club refused to give up. Colorado gave a helping hand by defeating Missouri and the Cornhuskers won their last six games to tie Missouri for the championship.

The momentum carried into 1970 and 1971 as the Cornhuskers put together back to back 7-0 seasons and stretched their Big Eight winning streak to 20 games, the longest string since Oklahoma was king of the hill in the late 1950s.

Devaney, Team Seek Better Bowl Average

Coach Bob Devaney, who got Nebraska into the post-season bowl victory column for the first time during his first year at the Husker football helm, now will try to get NU to the 500 level in bowl competition when the Huskers meet Alabama on New Year's Night in Miami's Orange Bowl.

Nebraska was 0-2 in bowl competition when Devaney arrived on the Lincoln campus in the winter of 1962. NU had lost to Stanford, 21-13, in the 1941 Rose Bowl and to Duke, 34-7 in the 1955 Orange Bowl, although Devaney once said "I was here for two years before I found out that Nebraska lost the Rose Bowl game."

Since arriving in 1962, Devaney virtually has made Husker fans forget that Rose Bowl with this year's Orange Bowl game being the eighth bowl trip in Devaney's 10 seasons at NU.

Devaney's NU bowl record stands at four wins and three losses, giving Nebraska an overall record of 4-5, meaning a New Year's night victory could get the Huskers to the 500 level in bowls.

Devaney evened the Huskers' bowl record quickly with a 36-34 win over Miami of Florida in the Gotham Bowl in his first year and a 13-7 win over Auburn in the Orange Bowl in his second year.

But three straight bowl losses — to Arkansas in the 1965 Cotton Bowl, Alabama in the 1966 Orange Bowl and again to Alabama in the 1967 Sugar Bowl dropped the reading to 2-5.

Then came two bowl-less years as both Devaney and Husker fans "suffered" through 6-4 seasons. something Devaney had never been accustomed to and something NU fans had become unaccustomed to since 1962.

But the bowl drought didn't last long and during those two years, Nebraska fans should have put a little money aside for essentials such as food and clothing.

But when Notre Dame decided to enter the bowl picture near the end of the 1969 season, the Huskers were caught in the "domino effect" and Devaney had to go shopping for a bowl instead of being wooed by bowl folk as has been his custom.

He found the Sun Bowl willing and the Huskers responded with a 45-6 romp over Georgia. That was Nebraska's seventh straight win that year and they haven't stopped yet.

The unbeaten string was extended to 19 with a 17-12 Orange Bowl victory over LSU a year ago, a victory that gave the Huskers the national championship, a tag they'll try to keep New Year's Night.

Utah State...

Utah State's Bob Wicks (42) looks for the ball that a split-second before had bounced from his shoulder as Nebraska's Dave Mason (25) moves to snag it. Snag it he did and galloped 53 yards for a touchdown. Jerry Tagge took the ball across the goal twice that day — once buried under a pile of players and once strolling across the goal line untouched.

Bowl-Bound Colorado Visits Huskers...

Had it not been for the emergence of Nebraska and Oklahoma as two of the greatest teams in the nation, the 1971 Colorado team might have been remembered as one of the best football teams ever fielded in the Big Eight Conference.

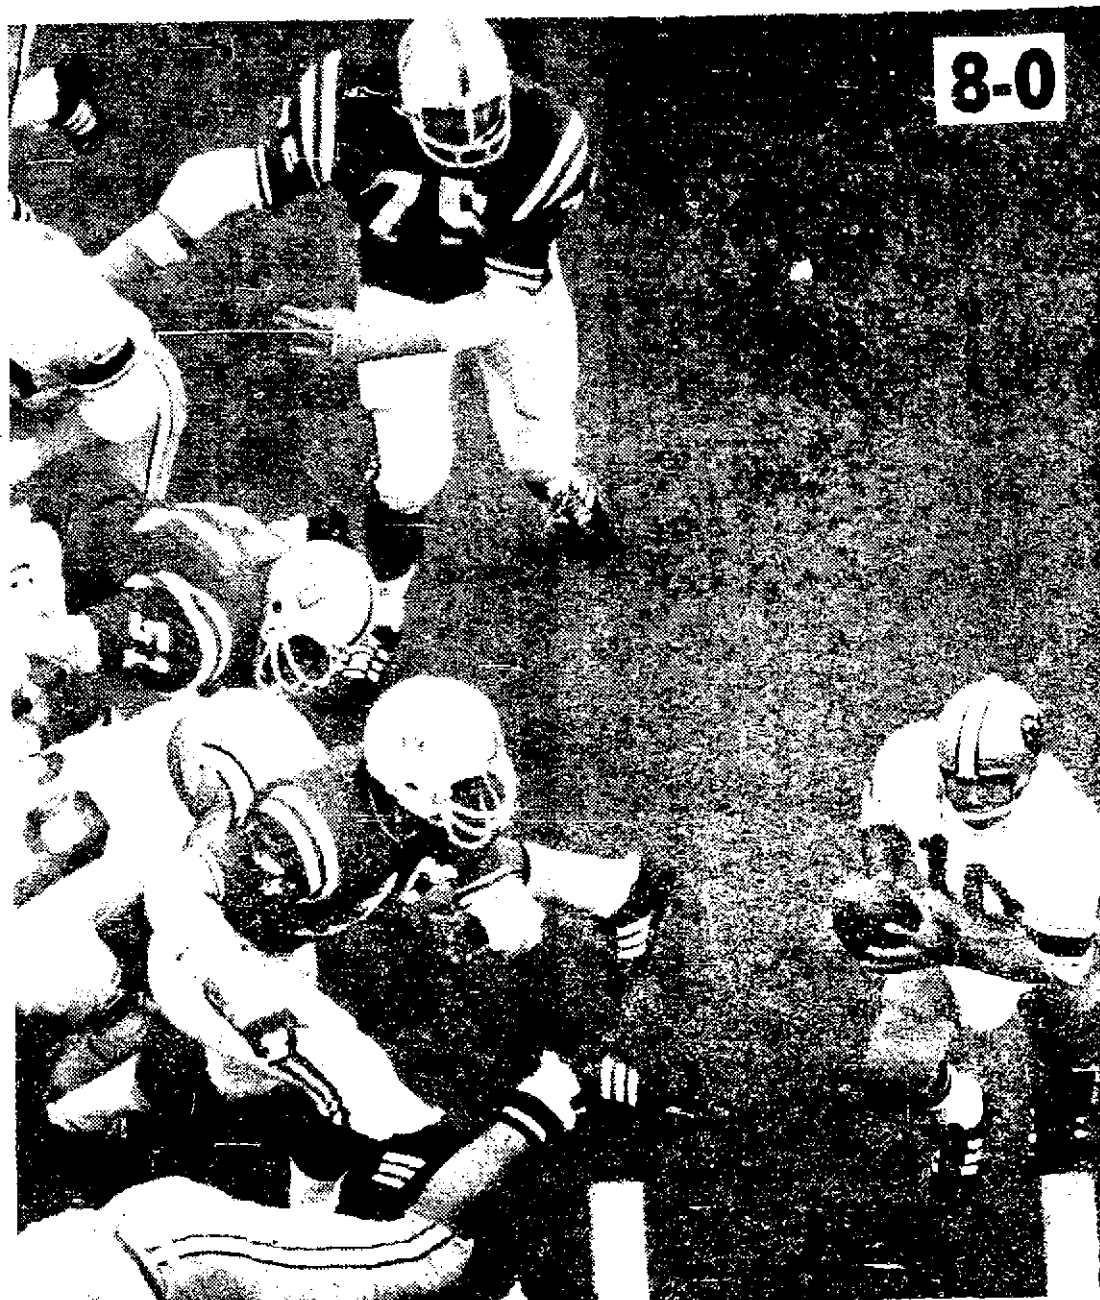

Eddie Crowder's club had perhaps the most impressive September any Big Eight team has ever had as the Buffaloes whipped LSU (31-20), Wyoming (56-13) and Ohio State (20-14).

Colorado's wins over LSU and Ohio State were at Baton Rouge and Columbus, where visiting teams are rarely successful. The win over Ohio State vaulted Colorado into fifth place in the national ratings.

But three weeks later the Colorado winning streak came to an abrupt halt. Oklahoma ran roughshod over the Buffs, 45-17. Two weeks after that Colorado was thumped by Nebraska, 31-7.

The Buffaloes had few problems the rest of the way as super sophomore Charles Davis averaged 126 yards a game on the ground to spark a rushing attack that clicked for 281.2 yards a game.

A 9-2 record enabled the Buffs to climb back into the top ten and earn a bid to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl for a New Year's Eve meeting with Hous-

Rich Glover (79) shows how to break through a line as he goes for Colorado quarterback Joe Duenas (10) and subsequently brings him down behind the line of scrimmage. The cold wind and wet turf didn't have much effect on NU as a national TV audience saw Johnny Rodgers set a new record for total yardage on pass receptions.

Improved Iowa State Beaten by NU...

In September, Iowa State football coach John Majors talked about his program having reached respectability. "We've reached a plateau, now we've got to build on it," he said.

Build on it the Cyclones did, winning 8 of 11 regular season games and earning the school's first post-season bowl invitation.

Even a 33-15 setback to LSU in the Sun Bowl failed to detract from the strides made by the Cyclones in 1971.

Majors' team lost only to nationally-ranked Colorado (24-14), Oklahoma (43-12) and Nebraska (37-0) and finished fourth in the Big Eight with a 4-3 conference record.

In fashioning the best Iowa State season since the days of the "Dirty Thirty" the Cyclones gave the Big Eight an unprecedented four bowl teams.

Iowa State wrapped up its bowl bid with an impressive 54-0 rout of Oklahoma State in its final Big Eight game. It was the Cyclones' biggest win since a 55-0 romp past San Jose State in 1959.

Leading the Cyclones to their 8-3 record was junior halfback George Amundson, a converted quarterback who became one of five Big Eight backs to rush for over 1,000 yards.

Iowa State's George Amundson (12) finds he can't do much with Willie Harper around as Bob Terrio (45) approaches just in case. NU's defense showed their stuff, handing the Cyclones their first shutout in 16 games. The Huskers' offense looked good, too, as Rich Sanger booted three field goals, Bill Olds made a 58-yard run and Johnny Rodgers scored on a 62-yard punt return.

Oklahoma, Nebraska Play Game of Century . . .

When Oklahoma football coach Chuck Fairbanks abruptly threw out the veer-T and installed the wishbone-T offense early in the 1970 season the move was not greeted with universal acclaim.

The Sooners made the transition in the two weeks prior to their annual grudge battle with Texas, a team which had helped popularize the wishbone. The Texas wishbone was obviously best on the day the Sooners unveiled their new offense — the Longhorns won convincingly, 41-9.

The sophomore-laden Oklahoma team won five of its last seven games, losing only to Kansas State and Nebraska, and played to a 24-24 tie with Alabama in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

The best was yet to come. The veteran Sooners went back to the basics of the wishbone offense in spring practice and came back in the fall with the most talked-about offense in the nation.

With clever Jack Mildren running the attack the Sooners ran for 472.4 yards a game and compiled a total offense figure of 566.5 yards a game, both all-time collegiate records. The Sooner wishbone was at its awesome best against Kansas State as it rolled for a record 711 yards on the ground and 74 through the air.

But Nebraska was one team the Sooners couldn't outscore as the Cornhuskers rallied in the closing minutes for a 35-31 win in the Thanksgiving Day "game of the century."

Oklahoma, which already had a Sugar Bowl invitation in hand, takes its explosive running game to New Orleans for a New Year's Day encounter with Auburn, the Southeastern Conference runner-up.

Jeff Kinney (35) falls over the goal line with less than two minutes to go to clinch a Husker triumph. Kinney, whose tear-away jersey was in shreds, ran for 174 yards and four touchdowns.

The largest TV audience ever to watch a college football game saw a lot of Rich Glover (79) seen tackling Oklahoma's Jack Mildren (11) as Dave Mason (25) closes in. Glover was in on 22 tackles, recovered a Sooner fumble and batted down a Mildren pass.

Hawaii....

John Dutton (from left), Pat Morell, Brent Longwell and Bill Janssen shed their football gear and exchange the football field for the beach in the days preceding their game against Hawaii. Over 10,000 Nebraska fans followed their example, shed winter garb and exchanged the winter cold for sunshine as they flocked to the islands.
